Egypt Says Attacks Fail

By The Associated Press

The Cairo command reported two Israeli thrusts Tuesday at the Suez Canal. Tel Aviv said an Israeli task force penetrated Egyptian territory on the west bank of the canal and was making commando-style strikes less than 100 miles from the Egyptian capital.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt warned that he might unleash missile war against Israeli cities.

Tanks slugged it out in major battles in Syria, and the Syrian command said the fighting continued into the night.

The Egyptian command said Israeli armor assaulted a beachhead at about noon and tried to cross the canal about 2:30 p.m. at another point. Both battles were in the central sector of the 103-mile waterway, according to the Cairo account.

Both attacks were thrown back, the Cairo command said.

The Israeli command had no immediate comment on the reported battles.

The command said Egyptian air power turned the tide in the Israeli assault on the beachhead.

Israel claimed its task force on the west bank of the canal was striking at Egyptian antiaircraft missile batteries and artillery. No point along the canal is more than 100 miles from the Egyptian capital.

President Anwar Sadat warned that Egypt has missiles ready to carry the Arab attack into "the very depths of Israel," if the Israelis attack the Arab heartland. But he added that he is ready to accept a cease-fire and attend a U.N. peace conference if Israel pulls out of all Arab lands occupied since 1967. (More on Page 2.)

Later in the day, Premier Golda Meir told the Israeli parliament she has received no cease-fire offer "from any source." She said the Egyptian drive into the Sinai had been blunted after 11 days of fierce desert tank battles, and added:

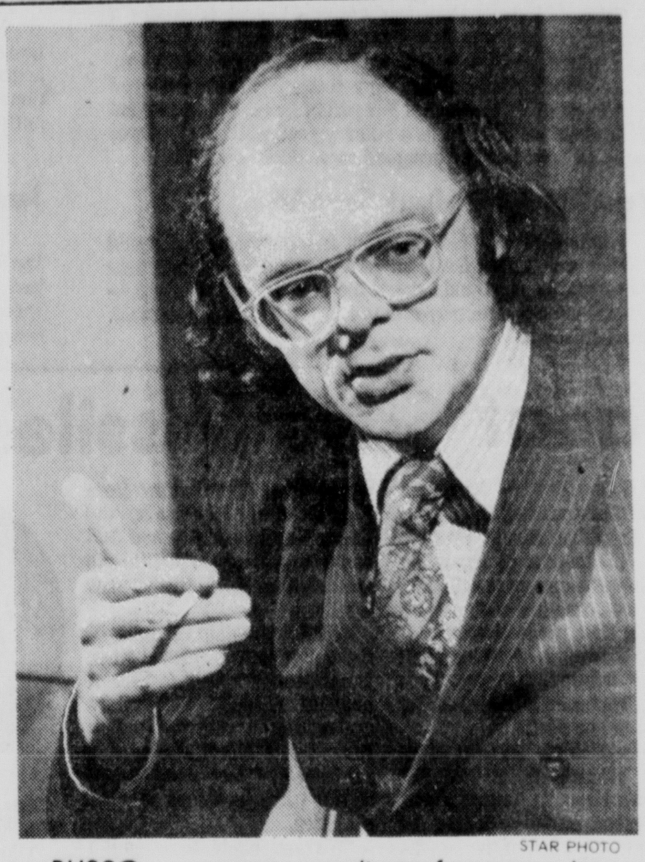

"The time for a cease-fire will come indeed when the enemy's strength has been broken.

"I have been asked repeatedly, 'When will it end?'," she said. "My answer is, when we manage to defeat the enemy."

The Israeli push into Syria has slowed markedly in the last two days and observers believed the brunt of Israeli firepower may have been turned to the south against the Egyptians in the Sinai.

The White House announced in Washington that President Nixon will meet Wednesday with four Arab foreign ministers. A spokesman for the four — from Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Kuwait and Morocco — said they want to ask Nixon about "U.S. involvement in the war."

Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, proposed to Nixon that he take the lead in calling a meeting with the leaders of the Soviet Union, France, West Germany, Britain and Japan in an effort to stop the war.

RUSSO . . . raps awarding of peace prize.

Kissinger Honor Travesty—Russo

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Daniel Ellsberg's co-defendant in the Pentagon Papers trial Tuesday labeled a "real travesty" the word that Henry Kissinger had been awarded the Novel Peace Prize.

"It takes the meaning out of the prize," said Anthony Russo. "I can't think of anyone who has contributed more to war and to genocide."

Russo was in Lincoln to speak to University of Nebraska students, who gathered 70-strong in the student union Tuesday afternoon to hear him.

Earlier, at a news conference, he blamed Kissinger for helping create a "new system of balance of power" that "really involves much too much coercion and military force."

"I see Kissinger as a real master of the art of tacit bargaining," Russo told reporters.

Tacit bargaining, he said, involves a "science in which you have to lie, to threaten, to promote a given policy."

"Kissinger is inscrutable," he said. "What is apparent is never real."

Awarding him the Nobel prize "is one of the worst developments I could imagine," said Russo.

It was Russo who was tried with Ellsberg in connection with the pulbic release of the Pentagon Papers, the Defense Department-ordered history of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

Both men once worked at the Rand Corp., the "think-tank" which was involved in much of the research on Vietnam.

Now, he said, he criticizes the think-tanks for their involvement in the development of system analysis programs which "revolutionized" the Defense Department.

"These methods masquerade under the title of science," said Ellsberg. "In reality they are all new forms of power mystification."

Kissinger and others like him "I see as kind of witch doctors," said Russo. "I don't think these men are good for this country in any way."

Later, Russo was applauded as he stepped onto the podium to speak to students in the student union.

Speaking quietly, he reviewed portions of the history of the Indochina conflict, the Pentagon Papers trial and the Watergate scandal.

He said he feared Watergate may be a "kind of sunset effect on democracy," and he urged students to throw off apathetic attitudes.

Criticizing secrecy in government, Russo said the American people need to demand that those in government "come clean."

Earlier, he had told reporters he had faith only in the American people, saying without the attention given the Pentagon Papers trial he believes the mistrial that freed him might never had been possible.

Because of feelings of powerlessness, "there is a cynicism abroad in the land," he told the student audience.

"We can fight it if we have the will," he said. "You can't tell how the future is going to change without putting yourself into the picture."

Blaze Sweeps Grain Elevator

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A fire in a Lincoln Grain Co. elevator northwest of Lincoln burned out of control for about one and one-half hours Tuesday afternoon and caused about $230,000 damage.

Firemen worked into the night to keep the blaze in the structure under control. Three metal grain bins and a fertilizer tank nearby were undamaged.

Henry Staack, a Lincoln Grain Co. employe said he heard something fall around 3 p.m. When he went outside he said, he realized the 75 to 100-foot high elevator, a wooden frame covered with corrugated iron, was on fire.

About 15 pieces of fire-fighting equipment including Lincoln's snorkel truck and rigs and tankers from Malcolm, Valparaiso, Raymond, Pleasant Dale and Martell were called to the scene.

Cause of the fire was believed to be belts that overheated. The belts at the top of the elevator are used to drive the scoops that carry grain.

Staack said the Malcolm Fire Department had been called to the elevator Monday night to cool things off with fire hoses when the belts grew hot.

Staack said that he also checked the belts several times Tuesday but that they had seemed cool. He said they had been loading grain into semi-trailers during the day.

Staack said the elevator and a smaller annex next to it contained about 65,000 bushels of milo and about 1,000 bushels of beans.

Bob Daily, manager of rural elevators for Lincoln Grain Co. estimated the value of the grain to be in excess of $130,000. He said the replacement value of the elevator and annex would be about $100,000.

Daily said the elevator was built in 1932. He said there had been three small fires in the "head house" containing the grain-carrying mechanism at the top of the elevator in previous years, but that all had been extinguished before serious damage resulted.

The elevator is located in what used to be the village of Woodlawn, located just south of U.S. 34 about one-half mile west of the north gate to the Lincoln Air Park.

Bish On Verge Of Making Governor's Race Decision

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Republican gubernatorial spotlight moved from Lincoln to Grand Island Tuesday in the wake of Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers' announcement that he will not enter the governor's race.

At the very moment that Rogers was telling newsmen in the Capital City that he was no longer a potential candidate, former GOP State Chairman Milan Bish and his wife were discussing his possible candidacy at their home in the Third City. (Rogers story on Page 40.)

"We are right now in the process of making our decision," Bish said.

It probably will be forthcoming within a week, and certainly by the end of the month, Bish said.

"I feel like I'm sitting on a knife's edge," he said. "And, to tell the truth, I have vacillated both ways in the past few days."

Bish said he is "sorry that Vance Rogers will not be a candidate," but he "would encourage people interested in the Republican nomination to come forward and say so."

An open GOP primary contest would be "good for the party and good for Nebraska politics," he said.

The list of potential GOP contenders for Democratic Gov. J. James Exon — assuming he decides to seek re-election in 1974 — has been steadily shrinking.

The early major prospects — National Committeeman Richard Herman of Omaha, Lieutenant Governor Frank Marsh and State Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings — are all now viewed as unlikely candidates, although Marvel has continued to express interest in the race.

State Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood all but bowed out of the field in an interview earlier this month, and Rogers firmly withdrew him name on Tuesday.

If no additional names are forthcoming, the pressure on Bish will be enormous. As a former party chairman, he may encounter contentions that he has an obligation to carry the GOP banner into battle against Exon.

Bish said he agrees with Rogers' judgment that the Democratic governor can be beaten next year.

"Contrary to what many people say, I think Exon is very vulnerable," Bish said. "I think some issues will start to arise in the near future."

But, Bish said, in reaching his own decision, he must consider a new personal element — an "opportunity" in the business world which needs an immediate response if it is to remain open.

"If I decide not to run, I should tell people as soon as possible," he noted. "And if I decide to run, I've got to get busy. So I had better decide within a week."

Whether he runs or not, Bish said, he thinks a primary contest would be healthy.

"Contrary to what a few so-called potential candidates may say, this party is not closed by any hierarchy. This party is open.

"I suspect some critics simply do not have the intestinal fortitude to run or they want a free ride.

"I encourage people who are interested to come forward. This is the party where things are going to happen."

Arabs Increase Crude Oil Cost

Kuwait (AP) — The six largest oil producing countries on the Persian Gulf announced a 17% price increase in their crude oil early Wednesday, but said the move had nothing to do with the Middle East war.

The price increase — from $3.12 to $3.65 a barrel for standard light Arabian crude — is not expected to affect the U.S. consumer right away. The most direct immediate affect is likely to be on Europe and Japan which depend mostly on the Middle East for their oil.

The United States depends upon the Middle East for about 6% of its oil needs.

Kissinger, Tho Win Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam were awarded the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize Tuesday for fashioning the cease-fire which officially ended the Vietnam war.

Mrs. Aase Lionaes, chairwoman of the Nobel committee, announced the award would be shared equally by the architects of the truce, who conducted 42 months of on-and-off, tough negotiations in Paris before reaching agreement in January.

In a brief statement, Mrs. Lionaes said the prize winners "had acted in accord with Alfred Nobel's idea . . . that conflicts should be solved through negotiations and not by war."

Asked if the choice had been difficult, Mrs. Lionaes said, "no."

Kissinger, 50, and Tho, 62, a member of the North Vietnamese Politburo and the first ranking member of a Communist government to win the prize, will each receive 255,000 Swedish crowns, or about $60,000, the Nobel medal and the peace prize diploma.

The presentations will be made in a formal ceremony at the University of Oslo Dec. 10. Mrs. Lionaes said she hoped both winners would attend. She said both had been notified immediately before the public announcement at the Nobel Institute.

Kissinger was attending a White House meeting on the Middle East when he received the word. He was beaming as he left to drive to the State Department, saying, "I'm very pleased." No comment was available from Tho.

President Nixon said, "By jointly citing Dr. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the Nobel Committee has also given deserved recognition to the art of negotiation," which Nixon said "will be more essential than ever as we seek to build and maintain a structure of peace in the world."

Kissinger, who was Nixon's chief national security adviser when he negotiated the cease-fire, is the 16th American to win the peace prize. Tho is the first Asian to be so honored.

Four other U.S. secretaries of state have won the Nobel Peace Prize — Elihu Root in 1912, Frank Kellogg in 1929, Cordell Hull in 1945 and George C. Marshall in 1953.

A total of 47 candidates had been nominated for the 1973 prize, including Nixon and Yugoslav President Tito.

The winners had been proposed by University of Oslo professor John Sanness, a committee member since 1970 and one of Norway's best known foreign affairs analysts.

Kissinger and Tho earned their prize the hard way — in hundreds of hours of tense and exhausting secret talks that often looked virtually hopeless.

Their meetings began in 1969, in such secrecy that Kissinger sometimes traveled to them by subway to avoid attracting the attention of newsmen.

When they ended in a blaze of news and television coverage in January, they were still nominally secret. But Kissinger and Tho found themselves followed wherever they went in Paris by scores of newsmen and photographers.

Beans Moved From Elevator

Bayard (AP) — Employes of the Chester B. Brown Co. continued moving beans out of a Bayard elevator Tuesday night following a fire in a warehouse containing about 5,000 bags of beans.

Extent of damage had not been determined. Officials said the blaze was believed to have been caused by an electrical problem.

Sadat Calls For Cease-Fire If Israel Withdraws

(c) New York Times News Service

Cairo — Egypt's President Anwar El-Sadat called for a cease-fire coupled with Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian land seized in 1967. Sadat, who also proposed a post-truce peace conference at the United Nations, warned that Egypt had dveloped a missile capable of striking at any part of Israel, but disclaimed that annihilation of Israel as a military goal, which he said was limited to liberating the occupied area. (More on Page 2.)

New Trial For Hunt Sought

Washington — E. Howard Hunt Jr.'s lawyer said he would fight for a new trial for Hunt on the grounds that improper government conduct had tainted the case against his client — the same issue that destroyed the government's case against Dr. Daniel Ellsberg.

Ruckelshaus Facing Probe

Washington — The disclosure that Deputy Atty. Gen. Ruckelshaus and his wife imported a young Finnish woman to help out in their household, apparently in violation of immigration laws, is being investigated by a congressional subcommittee.

Israelis Aim To Beat Enemy

Jerusalem — Premier Golda Meir told a special session of the Israeli Parliament Tuesday that the Middle East war would end "when we have succeeded in beating the enemy." In a speech that ranged from gruffness to the verge of tears, she described the war's death toll as a family tragedy and seemed almost to include the United States in that family when she said, "its people and its government are dear to us." (More on Page 2.)

Kissinger Wins Nobel Peace Prize

Oslo — The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to Henry Kissinger, U.S. secretary of state, and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam for negotiating the Vietnam cease-fire agreement. (More on Page 1.)

Mostly Civilian Cabinet Named

Bangkok — Thailand's new prime minister, Sanya Dharmasakti, named a predominantly civilian cabinet as Bangkok recovered from the weekend student riots that toppled the former military government. The new cabinet was installed as a caretaker administration to rule until elections are held under a new constitution Sanya has promised to draft in six months. (More on Page 3.)

Laird Blasts Soviets

Washington — President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, Melvin R. Laird, accused the Soviet Union of blocking efforts to achieve a Middle East cease-fire, but the State Department refused to criticize Soviet actions, stressing that "serious discussions" with Moscow were still under way. The opposing positions underscored how sensitive the issue of Soviet-American relations has become to official Washington, where politicians and diplomats view the issue from different perspectives.

Sadat Says Missiles Can Strike Israel

World News

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat warned on Tuesday that Egypt has missiles ready to strike the depths of Israel but said his government is willing to accept a cease-fire and attend a Middle East peace conference.

The conditions he set for a halt to the fighting, however, have been repeatedly rejected by Israel in the past.

Dressed in his uniform of an army colonel, Sadat told the nation's People's Assembly that long-range missiles would be given firing orders if the Israelis struck deep inside Egypt or Syria.

He said his offer for a cease-called an open letter to President Nixon.

He proposed:

– The withdrawal of Israeli troops from all occupied Arab territory "immeditaly, promptly and under international control" to positions held before the start of the 1967 Middle East war. This would mean the Israelis would have to withdraw from Egypt's Sinai peninsula, the Golan Heights of Syria and Jordan's West Bank, in addition to any territory taken in this new war.

—The restoration of rights of the Palestinians displaced when Israel became a state in 1948. A total of 1,540,694 Palestinians are registered with the United Nations as refugees and receive aid from it. Thirty-nine per cent of these live in camps in Arab countries.

"We are ready to attend a peace conference at the United Nations," Sadat said. "I shall try to convince other Arab leaders and the leaders of the Palestinian people so that all will take part in this conference."

Sadat drew thunderous applause with his hour-long speech stressing Egypt's readiness for either a cease-fire or "a war of attrition that we can endure much more than Israel can."

Sadat warned the Israelis: "Today your depth is vulnerable.

"Our Egyptian trans-Sinai missiles of the Zafer type are at their launching bases now ready for firing at a single order to the very depths of Israel, at any moment.

"We have been able to give the order from the first minute of battle . . . Arrogance and conceit made them (the Israelis believe they are capable of bigger things than the consequences they could endure."

Sadat indicated Egypt would not use her missiles unless Israel carries the war deep into Egyptian or Syrian territory, saying: "We realize the responsibility of the use of certain types of weapons and refrain from using them.

"But they have to recall what I once said and what I still say now: an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and depth for a depth."

Sadat said Egypt does not want the type of agreement that ended the last Arab-Israeli war and indicated the Arabs would be negotiating from a position of strength backed up by victories on the battlefields.

"A peace imposed by aggression can never last," he said, referring to the peace settlement imposed by a victorious Israel after the 1967 war. "Now on the battlefields we can see how impotent that theory was.

"Today our armed forces defy their armed forces and there is a big war, a prolonged war . . .

"We are not ready to accept vague promises with no meaning. This is a waste of time. It would mean a return to stalemate. What we need now is clarity and vision."

Sadat also said Egypt is ready to reopen the Suez Canal to commercial shipping "as a contribution to world prosperity."

"I have ordered the Suez Canal authorities to take the next necessary steps," he added. "Preparations are under way for the canal to be ready for navigation."

Sadat praised the Egyptian forces "adaptability to sophisticated weapons," and said they had "performed a miracle" by crossing the canal and storming Israel's Bar-Lev line in the Sinai peninsula.

He thanked Syrian forces fighting the Israelis on the northern front for having "proved to be the most honorable of friends" but he did not name any other Arab country participating in the war effort.

Meir Says War Will End When Victory Is Israel's

©The New York Times

Jerusalem — Premier Golda Meir told a special session of Israel's parliament Tuesday the war would end "when we have succeeded in beating the enemy."

In the most bristling statement by any Israeli leader since war broke out, the 75-year-old premier responded to international speculation about a cease-fire by saying gruffly:

"Up to now no proposal for a cease-fire has been made to the Israeli government by any political factor whatsoever. Accordingly, there is no need for us to discuss the subject.

"Moreover, the Egyptians and Syrians have seemingly not yet been beaten enough to evince any desire for a cease-fire."

Mrs. Meir was also reflecting much national sentiment when she paid tribute to the United Staes. "Its people and its government are dear to us," Mrs. Meir said.

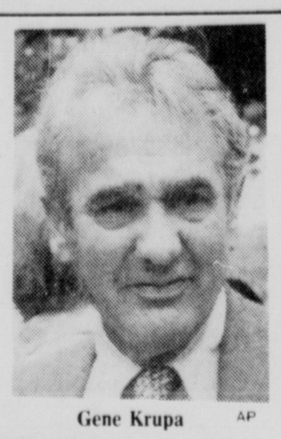

The premier did not mention that here and in Tel Aviv people were noticing the frequent overflights on their way to Israeli airports of U.S. transport planes, presumably carrying American military supplies for Israel.

But Mrs. Meir had no kind words for other nations. She repeated her sharp criticism of the Soviet Union as her enemies' most powerful friend and source of assistance. She was scathing also in her attacks on France and Britain.

She denounced Britain's "embargo on the shipments of arms to Israel at a time when we are fighting for our very life," and said that Israel's repeated protests against French sales or Mirage jet fighters to Libya has been justified. She alleged that such planes had been shot down by Israeli forces, proving that Libya had transferred the aircraft to Israel's enemies.

Mrs. Meir spoke sardonically of international peacemaking efforts that she said would follow Israeli success on the battlefield.

"I am certain that when we have succeeded in bringing our enemies to the verge of collapse," she said, "representatives of various states will not be long in volunteering to try to save our attackers by means of a cease-fire, and then there will be considerable activity at the United Nations, the Security Council. At any rate, now as in previous wars, the cease-fire depends first and foremost on the strength of the Israeli armed forces."

Drummer Krupa Dies

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Gene Krupa, the king of hot jazz drummers, died Tuesday at his home here. He was 64.

He had been released a week ago from Yonkers General Hospital, where he was treated for leukemia.

A 1959 movie called "The Gene Krupa Story," starring Sal Mineo as Krupa, told of Krupa's career from his Chicago beginnings around 1927 to 1943, when he made a comeback after serving a prison term for possession of marijuana.

He seldom discussed his marijuana conviction, but in 1969 talked about it to a group of teenagers on Long Island.

With shoulders hunched and face grimacing, he demonstrated for the youngsters drum rolls played by a "straight" drummer and by one on marijuana.

"When you play the drums, you try to draw the sound out," he said. "But when you're on drugs, you pound."

U.S. To Open East Gulf To Exploration For Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a growing energy crisis, the United States is preparing to open the eastern Gulf of Mexico to oil exploration to boost domestic production.

The Interior Department plans to permit offshore drilling despite environmentalists' warnings that oil spills could ruin beaches that attract tourists and fears that discovery of oil could force military base closings.

The beaches and bases provide important revenue for local communities along the eastern Gulf.

The U.S. Geological Survey believes the area has between two and three billion barrels of oil and production potential of up to 590,000 barrels daily. That is about half as much oil as is being pumped off the Louisiana and Texas Coasts.

The Interior Department has indicated it will accept oil company bids in December for drilling rights on more than 800,000 acres of the Gulf off the Florida, Mississippi and Alabama coasts.

Full development of the Eastern Gulf would require about 1,500 wells, says the Interior Department.

Several members of Florida's congressional delegation have appealed to Preaident Nixon to halt the leasing, but he has not intervened.

The congressmen warn that the oil wells would be environmentally unsound and theaten what Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla., calls the "most beautiful beaches in the world."

The beaches between Panama City and Pensacola are a principal western Florida tourist attraction. "You have an oil spill on that snow white sand and it will ruin it," says Gunter.

Compromise Bill On Contribution To Lunches OKd

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise bill increasing the federal contribution to school lunches was approved by the Senate Tuesday.

The measure would raise the federal grant to 10 cents from 8 cents for lunches bought by school children and to 45 cents from 40 cents for free lunches given to poor children.

The House passed similar legislation last Friday.

The bill goes back to the House for consideration of an amendment added by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., which provides that a few states already getting more than 45 cents for the free lunches under a special provision will not lose under the new formula.

Oil Antitrust Action Urged

Miami Beach (UPI) — A Maritime labor leader said Tuesday the government should begin antitrust proceedings against the major U.S. oil companies for their concentration of ownership and control of the energy industry.

President Jesse M. Calhoon of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association also charged that big banks are assisting the oil industry in its alleged monopolistic practices because the banks control big blocs of stock owned by oil company employe pension programs managed by the banks.

Calhoon told the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department convention that the oil industry's "clear violation" of the antitrust laws was "contributing heavily to the energy crisis."

This was the second report in two days at the convention critical of the oil industry. The Maritime Trades Department said Monday the government should regulate the oil industry the same way it does public utilities.

GAO Alleges Violation By U.S. Cambodia Team

Washington (UPI) — A 73-man U.S. military team in Cambodia is actually functioning as an advisory group in apparent violation of a 1971 congressional ban, the General Accounting Office charged Monday.

The GAO, in a 92-page report on U.S. operations in Cambodia, also said there has been a considerable number of questionable financial transactions by both U.S. and Cambodian officials in the three years since American aid to the Phnom Penh government resumed.

It charged, too, that State and Defense Department officials and U.S. military officers including Adm. John S. McCain Jr., the former Pacific commander, tried to hinder its investigation and blocked access to some vital information.

The Defense Department denied that its military equipment delivery team had violated the congressional ban. It said members were in the field in Cambodia merely to gather information necessary to a smooth supply operation.

The report cited congressional bans on sending either combat troops or U.S. military advisers to Cambodia, and said that while Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird claimed in 1971 the government was abiding by the rules, in fact it was not doing so.

"As the Cambodia staff increased it assumed additional duties and became more involved with the Cambodian military. Except for not assigning advisers to specific field units, MEDT operated much the same as a military assistance advisory group," the report said. MEDT stands for Military Equipment Delivery Team.

GAO said the team which is supposed to oversea the arrival and allocation of supplies helps the Cambodians draw up military plans, operate their headquarters, run the supply system and perform other military functions.

In addition, it said, the Defense Department sent in at least 61 special teams on temporary assignments in Cambodia that were "almost totally unrelated to equipment delivery."

The report made no mention of the role of U.S. military men in running the bombing program in Cambodia halted on Aug. 15 by congressional action. It did report that the military spent over $600,000 to set up communications for it and then concealed the amount.

Among other irregular transactions it listed were:

— Concealment of costs for 300 GIs who trained Cambodian soldiers in Vietnam and for "excess" equipment turned over to Cambodia.

Students In Control Of Capital; Civilians Dominate Thai Cabinet

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's new premier named a civilian-dominated cabinet Tuesday following a student revolt that overthrew the old military regime in two days of riots and street fighting.

The capital remained under student control with troops and all but a few traffic police keeping out of sight. But the students put aside their banners and took up brushes to clean up the debris of battle.

All but two important posts in Prime Minister Sanya Thammasak's cabinet went to civilians, about half of them academics.

The ministers were chosen in consultation with student leaders and were widely hailed among the thousands of youths who took to the streets to confront police and troops at height of of the revolt.

The overthrow of Thailand's three military strongmen not only returns the country to civilian rule but greatly increases the influence of King Bhumibol Adulyadej. Prime Minister Sanya, a respected university rector, is regarded as a king's man.

The King's role in the turbulent events is getting wide publicity that likely will enhance his already considerable prestige.

Sanya pledged at a news conference Tuesday that he would give the country a new constitution and hold national elections within six months — two of the students' main demands.

New Foreign Minister Charoonpan Issarangkul indicated there would be no change in Thailand's foreign policy and the country's close and friendly relations with the United States would continue.

The United States has more than 38,000 servicemen at six air bases in Thailand.

Ford Says He Helped Liddy Get Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford confirmed on Tuesday that he helped get Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy a job in government as a political favor for another congressman.

But Ford denied another story, published in a book last year, that he underwent psychiatric treatment for a year. He called it a "categorical inaccuracy."

The House Republican leader said he called the Treasury Department to help get Liddy a job there in 1957 or 1968 at the request of Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y.

Ford said Fish and local Republicans wanted to be able to promise Liddy a job in Washington if President Nixon won in 1968 so that Liddy would not run against Fish. Liddy had challenged Fish in the 1966 Republican primary.

Ford told newsmen: "I said, 'Ham, he's not my constituent, he's yours. It's your responsibility. But I'll make a phone call'."

Ford said he called Eugene T. Rossides, then assistant secretary for trade, and Liddy subsequently got a job in the Treasury Department.

The allegation that Ford had psychiatric treatment for a year from a Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker in New York City was published by Washington lobbyist Robert N. Winter-Berger in his book "The Washington Pay-Off."

Ford told newsmen he visited Hutschnecker for 15 minutes one time to meet him — not for treatment.

Hutschnecker said in a telephone interview from his New York office that the book's allegation is untrue.

"He (Winter-berger) extolled Hutschnecker's virtues as an eminent doctor and said I should meet him," Ford said.

Asked how Winter-Berger had gotten close enough to Ford to make such suggestions, Ford said the lobbyist was originally introduced to him by longtime friends.

Rep. Rhodes' Path Clearing

Washington (UPI) — Two of the four major candidates to succeed vice presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford as House Republican leader dropped out of the race Tuesday —virtually assuring the post will go to Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz.

Reps. John Anderson, R-Ill., and Samuel L. Devine, R-Ohio, said they would not seek the job and a third contestant, Rep. Leslie Arends, R-Ill., now No. 2 in the House GOP leadership, is expected to drop out this week.

Roy Clark Chosen Top Entertainer

Nashville, Tenn. (AP) — The top award at the Grand Ole Opry Country Music Hall of Fame Awards Show, the country music entertainer of the year award, went to Roy Clark, a star in television's "Hee Haw."

Loretta Lynn was chosen the top female vocalist and Charley Rich the top male vocalist. Rich also received an award for the best album of the year.

Conway Twitty and Miss Lynn received the vocal duo award while Chet Atkins and the late Patsy Cline were named to the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Cambodian Issues Order Against Looters

Phnom Penh (AP) — Cambodia's top military commander issued a strong warning Tuesday to "shoot on sight" anyone caught looting. He said stern measures were needed to restore order in the city and "put an end to trouble makers."

The order by Maj. Gen. Sosthene Fernandez came after the looting of a surburban market by armed soldiers on Sunday. The looting stemmed from a rice dispute and general anger about skyrocketing food prices in the past week.

A terrorist plastic bomb exploded in a crowded Phnom Penh movie theater earlier in the afternoon, wounding 30 persons, 10 seriously, police sources said.

Sirica Refuses To Free Watergate 5 On Bail

Washington (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, saying five Watergate defendants "knowingly, intentionally and voluntarily" pleaded guilty in January, refused Tuesday to release them on bail.

Sirica, however, did set hearings for Oct. 29 and Nov. 5 on motions by the five to change their pleas to innocent. A defense lawyer indicated he may subpoena former White House aides to testify.

Sirica said if he turned down the request for plea changing, he would pronounce final sentence shortly thereafter.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

One wonders if some of the parts and people of the American judicial system are not running in the wrong direction in the matter of pre-trial publicity. The question was pertinent in the case of Vice President Agnew and the discussion of leaks to the press of reported charges against him.

While it is now a moot question, it had caused President Nixon to point out along the way the need for reliance upon a presumption of innocence before guilt is proven. Presumably, Nixon had felt at that time that news leaks were tending to indict Agnew in advance.

Indeed, that is an important element of our system of justice but so much of the concern in this area of things tends to overlook another important part of the system. It was never intended, obviously, that a jury be uninformed before it could be empaneled.

The important thing about a jury is that it affirm its ability to consider fairly only the evidence presented to it. But what we seem so often to be looking for is a jury that knows absolutely nothing in advance about the case it intends to try.

That is a simple impracticality in this day and age. We suspect, in fact, that if a defense attorney ran onto someone who knew nothing about his defendant's problem when the case was a sensational one, that attorney might not want such an individual on the jury.

Such an individual would have to be of such a peculiar nature or way that he would automatically be a highly questionable juror. Probably neither the defense nor the prosecution would want him.

What you want is not an individual on the jury who has heard, seen or read nothing about a case, but rather, one who can state with conviction that he would not allow this advance information to prejudice him in rendering a verdict.

Now if, indeed, you can find such a person, it really would make no difference what he thought about the guilt or innocence of the accused. The essential thing is that he look only at the evidence presented in court, without consideration of his prior opinions.

Now, it may seem that this is asking too much. But would it be easier to find an individual who could disregard his prior opinion or one who had no opinion at all?

It is our feeling that the former would be the easier. Before Agnew's admission of income tax evasion, it is very likely that the vast majority of people already had an opinion as to his guilt or innocence.

Had the Agnew case ever gone to trial, the opposing attorneys would never have found a jury of people without some advance knowledge of the case. It is doubtful that they could even have found individuals without any opinion at all as to the guilt or innocence of the accused.

This does not mean that we ought to forget about communications that might prejudice a jury in advance but it does suggest we might be giving the matter more weight than it is entitled to. And in doing so, we tend to abort the legal system itself.

A fair trial, after all, is essential to our system. If we continue to threaten the achievement of this through a misguided concern for pre-trial publicity, we would do ourselves no good.

Modern communications what they are, we can easily become paranoid on the subject. We could, so to speak, throw out the baby because we don't like the bath water.

'Household Word'

Agnew Bids Farewell

Spiro Agnew's speech Monday night reflected well on the former vice president as he returns to private life. Its delivery was especially good — controlled, fairly precise, lacking some of the gaudy language Agnew liked to bandy about when he was riding high.

Agnew took his usual pokes at the usual enemies and he issued more denials of wrongdoing, carefully stating that nothing had been proved against him, although hardly anyone has missed the central point that an innocent man does not accept conviction on a criminal charge.

It was, however, a more conciliatory speech than might have been expected. Agnew was generous and warm in his praise of President Nixon, when many close to him felt he had reason to be bitter. He was likewise warm in expressing praise for the man who will succeed him, Gerald Ford, gratitude for being twice elected to the vice presidency, optimism for the nation's future and his belief that our system is more durable than any man's career. It was, in all, a warm, patriotic swan song which should generate a great deal of sympathy for the former vice president.

And it contained a bit of wisdom that, considering the source, should not be taken lightly.

Agnew said he hopes the trauma of his case will "form the crucible out of which a new system of campaign financing is forged," to avoid even the appearance of wrong-doing by public officials in raising political funds. He urged an overhaul of the laws to provide public financing for every candidate for office.

So it is not only liberal daydreamers and dirt-poor Democrats who favor clamping down on how political money is raised and spent. Others have joined the cause and public financing of campaigns is only one of the alternatives and perhaps not the best one.

But here is Spiro Agnew, the guy who got caught with his fingers in the pie, who has been disgraced and forced from office, who in his last speech to the nation will finally admit that the "long-established pattern of political fundraising" in his state, of which he was a part, is wrong and needs changing. That should count for something.

Security Costs Jump

Like just about everything else, the cost of securing the safety of the nation's top official is going up.

A Pentagon official told a House subcommittee holding hearings on presidential security this week that it cost taxpayers $640,000 to maintain Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland, during the 1973 fiscal year, compared to costs ranging from $118,000 to $148,000 annually during President Johnson's tenure. Those are costs incurred by the military for security operations.

The committee has also been shown cost figures for securing other presidential residences, such as San Clemente, the LBJ Ranch, a Kennedy home at Palm Beach, the Eisenhower farm, Harry Truman's home in Independence and FDR's cottage at Warm Springs, Ga., and his mansion at Hyde Park, N.Y. Since FDR's and Truman's times, the costs have spiraled upwards, reaching the multi-million dollar level during the Johnson and Nixon years.

Much of it is due to inflation and more sophisticated equipment, as the Pentagon official said.

The increase in costs might also be attributed to the attitudes of an individual president — his importance as perceived by him, his fear of assassination, his ideas of what the public owes him.

One thing hasn't changed. It is no more risky to be president now than it was a hundred years ago.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Who Has A Job For Mr. Agnew?

NEW YORK — In the middle of all the excitement, as the nation considers the future of the vice presidency, let us pause for a moment to consider the future of the vice president we used to have.

It is, as Spiro Agnew would be the first to admit, a pretty black prospect. For him . . . for his wife . . . for his children.

Because, no matter how you felt about him as a politician, Mr. Agnew was a personality, a voice (if not a power) of the administration, a headline-maker.

Now he's a non-person.

The American public, which has been hotly debating his guilt for weeks, dropped him the minute he copped a plea on tax evasion.

Mr. Agnew is a has-been in disgrace, out of favor and out of a job. And maybe only his wife, Judy, is worrying about how he will support his family now.

There's always his profession as a lawyer, of course. But that may not be so easy to pick up again.

In the first place, Mr. Agnew has never claimed to be a brilliant legal eagle. His law firm, which he opened in 1947, failed, in his own words, "miserably." And when he returned from Korea he worked only briefly in three or four law firms before he began running for public office.

Now he is a convicted felon who, according to the sentencing judge, would be on his way to jail if the Justice Department hadn't recommended leniency. Whether the American Bar Association will disbar him is one question; who would hire him to represent them in court is another.

He's not exactly a hot prospect for other employment, either. Even a man famous for his way with words would have trouble writing up a resume that would make anybody want to hire him now. Especially when he came to the line in the application form that goes: "Why did you leave your last place of employment?"

And it's not likely that he could ever again run for public office. When he was picked as the Nixon running mate his name was not a "household word." It is now — and the word is "mud."

Also, there probably aren't many political plums waiting for a man who holds the dubious honor of being the first vice president in history to be convicted of a federal crime.

Mr. Agnew has lost more than his reputation. For one thing, his resignation cuts off his $62,500 salary, plus a $10,000 expense account. And, according to a 1972 financial statement, he is not a rich man. At that time he had $67,250 in the bank and, like most Americans, a mortgage on his 12-room, $190,000 home.

Since then his money problems have increased. There's that $10,000 fine for tax evasion, just for openers. Plus the fact that the income tax boys are interested in collecting those taxes and others which could, with fines and interest, go as high as $100,000.

And what he owes his lawyers for plotting his involved defense is anybody's guess. But it won't do his bank balance any good.

Cynics on the scene are full of predictions: Mr. Agnew will wind up as a behind-the-scenes lobbyist for special interests. Or maybe his old golfing buddy, Frank Sinatra, will put him on the payroll.

Whatever job he manages to line up, Mr. Agnew will be spared one final humiliation: Included in the leniency of the court is the provision that he won't have to report regularly to his probation officer.

ANTHONY LEWIS

It Will Not Down

BOSTON — For more than a year now, from the first smell of the Watergate cover-up through the decline and fall of Spiro Agnew, a question has haunted the politics of this country: is there any way to restore the faith of Americans, their belief in their leaders and themselves, while Richard Nixon remains president?

It is in the nature of politics and politicans to avoid fundamental questions, to compromise, to forget, to move on. Washington has seen many efforts to do just that about the Nixon question, and not only on the part of the President himself. A curious recent example was Sen. Howard Baker's fatuous assurance that Watergate was behind us. Another is the evident desire of some to treat the whole Agnew affair as a minor unpleasantness, a ripple.

Avoidance and forgetfulness are necessary political devices; we do not want a state of continuous battle. But there are some questions that will not go away, and this is one.

If Nixon had shaken the constitutional assumptions of the American system by only a single act or a limited course of conduct, it might indeed be possible to overlook that as a sport — or to live with disagreement in that area. But the whole point of his presidency is that there have been no discernable limits to his contempt for established principle, and for law.

This President has proclaimed his right to use the military forces of the United States in secret, without consulting Congress or the public. He has said that he has power to carry on a war in the face of explicit disapproval by a majority of both houses of Congress. He has asserted an inherent power to wiretap, spy and commit burglaries in the name of national security. He has claimed personal exemption from the rule of law.

Again, there would be a strong argument for accommodation if Nixon had shown a willingness to learn from the trauma he has inflicted on the country — if he had any reserves of the humility that is the hallmark of strength. But he has learned nothing. He knows no course other than insisting that all's for the best, that we have peace with honor, that the country grows richer by the hour.

Anyone who still hoped to find some residual dignity or sensitivity in the man should have been disabused by the charade as he announced his choice of Gerald Ford for vice president. That scene in the East Room of the White House was the most repellent American public ceremony in memory.

The very idea of a televised tease over the name was contemptible. If it was to be a public occasion, it should have been a solemn one before Congress. The man who gave us Agnew — and Mitchell and Stans and Haldeman and Ehrlichman and Colson and Liddy and Hunt and Krogh and Dean and Magruder and Chapin — grinned as he unveiled his next choice. There was not the slightest sense of responsibility for what had passed, not the least reference to the grizzly reason for this occasion.

The vulgarity of the scene would not ordinarily be worth noticing. But in this case, form and content were uncomfortably mixed. For the viewer inevitably found himself asking: Why should so many leading members of Congress have come to lend themselves to such a performance? (Mike Mansfield did have the sense to stay away.) Can Americans in general respond to such stuff? Is that our country? The answer has to be no: Richard Nixon's values are not America's. Either that or all of us give up our vision of this country. We really have to stop pretending that Nixon is somehow going to change, going to conform to the old American dream of an enlightened society governed by law. It is a question of character, and he has made clear that his cannot change.

We live under a written constitution, but in fact we depend upon unwritten restraints to make the system work. Prof. Richard Neustadt of Harvard, a student of the presidency, calls them restraints of propriety and prudence; they could also be called restraints of character.

Slowly, inexorably, the country is perceiving that it cannot avoid the fundamental question of Richard Nixon's leadership. Even Congress, that most reluctant body of heroes, is coming to face the difficult truth. And the process cannot be stopped. If Agnew is condemned for tax evasion, if Ford understands that he must open his tax and financial records, will Congress let the President continue to shelter his questioned dealings? That is not possible.

It is in the light of the Nixon question that Gerald Ford has to be judged. He is a man who would hardly have been considered for president on his own merits; a dim figure whose most imaginative declaration was that "an impeachable offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at a given moment in history." (That statement, in 1970, was aimed at Justice William O. Douglas.)

But on all the evidence so far, Ford is honorable. He is a viable alternative to Nixon, in fact a better one than we have had before now. Most important, he has his own political roots, and he cannot therefore be what Nixon would wish — an absolute assurance of his own survival.

People are still reluctant to think of forcing a president from office, but they are beginning to understand that it may be unavoidable. For as long as Nixon is there, it will be as Edgar said in "King Lear":

"The worst is not so long as we can say, 'this is not the worst.' "

TOM WICKER

Ignoring The Law

NEW YORK — One of the few Nixon administration officials unstained by the Watergate and related scandals recalled recently that he had frequently noticed and feared a tendency in the Haldeman-Ehrlichman White House toward ignoring or breaking the law. He cited the following episode, which happened well before the June, 1971, break-in at the Democratic National Committee.

Congress had passed legislation which the official was required to administer; but one provision of it he regarded as totally unenforceable. Conferring with John Ehrlichman, then the head of the Domestic Council, the official advised one of two courses — either an immediate request to Congress for needed changes, or an effort to enforce the provision for a year, after which the evidence of its unworkability could be placed before Congress.

Instead of accepting either recommendation, Ehrlichman coolly ordered the official simply to ignore the provision.

"But we can't do that," the official protested. "Congress passed it. It's the law."

"Do you mean to tell me," Ehrlichman then demanded, "that if Congress does something that's not in the public interest the President doesn't have the power to set it aside?"

The official argued in vain that the President could veto an act but not ignore the law — that the legislative branch had the constitutional power and duty to legislate. He argued in vain because he was up against the mentality that produced the Watergate offenses — the notion that the presidency is above the law, the Constitution, the courts, Congress, the people, that in the cloak of national security or public interest, the elected mortal in the White House can become more than that, and can authorize anything from a burglary to the secret bombing of another country.

The Second Circuit Court of Appeals has just dismissed that contention, in the matter of Nixon's tapes; but even as it did so another story popped up to suggest how strongly it influenced the first Nixon administration. Not just one, as had been thought, but two National Security Council staff members were wiretapped after they had left their N.S.C. positions and joined the presidential campaign staff of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

It was already known that this had been the case with Morton Halperin; now government sources have disclosed that it was equally true in the case of Anthony Lake, who became chairman of Muskie's Committee on the Military Budget. Both men were originally tapped without court orders under the President's presumed but not certain authority to order wiretaps to protect national security. Even if it were argued that Halperin and Lake could be properly tapped after they left the government, since presumably they retained security information in their heads, authorization for the taps was supposed to be specifically reviewed by the attorney general's signature every 90 days. Yet, one tap remained on Halperin for 21 months and the other on Lake for nine months without authorization for renewal in either case.

Those tapes, extending electronic eavesdropping directly into the political organization of a major opponent, were of the most dubious propriety and were, in the first instance, of uncertain legality; that is true also of the unexplained wiretapes on John Sears and James W. McLane, two White House officials with absolutely no national security functions or access to national security information. But set propriety aside and concede the original legality of these taps; those on Halperin and Lake became clearly illegal without the required renewals. They furnish one more of all too many instances in which the Nixon-Haldeman-Ehrlichman White House did what it pleased and what served its interest despite what the Second Circuit called "the law's commands."

Unfortunately, this kind of misuse of power and official lawbreaking is difficult to explain; it is apparently not of much interest to a public that tends to concede to the President all sorts of powers not to be found in the Constitution; and it is frustrating to a Congress that has neither stomach for, nor efficient means of grappling with the President on constitutional grounds — much less in the press and on television. So the perversion of the presidency under Nixon may well go legally unpunished, shameful though that will be.

On the other hand, evidence is mounting that government expenditures at San Clemente, Nixon's extraordinary financing of that private property, his tax returns, and cash gifts from such interested parties as Howard Hughes—any or all of these murky matters — may not stand investigation. That, after all, is the way the downfall of Spiro Agnew came about — when government evidence showed him to be what U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson of Chicago, a member of the prosecuting team, called "a simple crook."

That was something the public could understand and react against, and a matter with which Congress could have dealt if Agnew had not himself copped a plea and resigned to stay out of prison. Being on the make for dictatorial power is much more threatening than being on the take for money, but the latter is probably a more certain route to impeachment for a president or anyone else.

The Architect

Blair, Neb.

Somehow it all evades me. I have always understood that a man cannot be tried more than once for the same crime. Over two weeks ago, the Nebraska Young Republicans, meeting in Kearney, tried and acquitted Spiro Agnew of any wrongdoing. Apparently they forgot at the time to tell the national Justice Department and Agnew about it. "What a tangled web we weave. . ."

If Mr. Nixon had to appoint someone to succeed Agnew, it might just as well be Ford, rather than the darling of the Texas oil lobby, Connally, the propped-up former B-picture has-been, Reagan, or the gasoline baron, Rockefeller. Ford is as captive to Nixon as anyone else in the highest echelons of this floundering Republican dynasty.

Now, as endless days of confusion, agonizing personal reassessments and self-recrimination grind away, about the only solution I can see and hope for is the resignation of Mr. Nixon who has to be architect of the whole sordid mess of the government we are being literally devoured by.

U.S. Involvement

Lincoln, Neb.

I wonder how many of The Star readers realize the possible implications of American involvement on the Israeli side in the latest Middle East war? The Israeli offensive now being mounted against Cairo and Damascus is possible only because of American-supplied Phantom jets, tanks, missiles and other war material. Should the Israelis succumb to the natural temptation to "bomb the Arabs back into the Stone Age," the Arabs, not illogically, would do anything to strike back at the United States for their disgrace. Obviously the Arabs could harm this country in only one way — to deprive it of oil.

Lest some readers doubt that the Arabs could be so incredibly stupid as to play this card, bring the United States to a halt, and almost certainly invite American-Israeli seizure of Arab oil lands, two facts should be recalled. During the Six-Day War in 1967, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Iraq, and other Arab oil countries stopped the flow of oil to the United States. Recently it was reported that the Pro-American King Faisal of Saudi Arabia warned the United States of a similar move — this time, however, permanently, should this country enable the Israelis to impose a Carthaginian peace on the Middle East.

The consequences of an American take-over of Arab oil-producing regions would, of course, be catastrophic. American soldiers would find themselves fighting a guerrilla war to end all guerrilla wars in the deserts of the Middle East against millions of Arabs fighting to the death. Since the embargo would affect only the United States, not a single other nation would support our actions. Our involvement in Vietnam would seem like a lark compared to such Middle East involvement.

Obstetric Center

Lincoln, Neb.

As I read of the plans being made by the Lancaster County Health Planning Council to consolidate all obstetrical services into one hospital, I have to wonder if it occurred to anyone to ask the opinions of the women who will use the services. How many will appreciate having no choice in which hospital they will deliver their babies? No matter which obstetrician they choose, they will have no choice of hospitals. No choice!

I cannot understand the selection of Lincoln General as the most suitable when the neo-natal care center is at St. Elizabeth's. A critically ill newborn would have to be transported clear across town at the very time when even a matter of seconds may be crucial.

I for one greatly resent the idea of a committee's telling me where I must have my children. I do not intend to be shunted off easily to whichever hospital they choose for me.

Welfare Dept. Asks Extra $6.4 Million

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Department of Public Welfare submitted its budget Tuesday, asking an additional $6.4 million to keep payments to the aged, blind and disabled at their current level, meet increasing costs of Medicaid and increase social services. But it delayed its recommendation for a cost-of-living increase to welfare mothers, pending the outcome of a study, according to director Lawrence L. Graham.

The state's maximum payment to a welfare mother with one child has remained at $124 per month for the last three years.

An increase in the maximum payment would not be included in the budget the first year, but would take a supplementary appropriation.

The biggest increase in the budget was a $3.5 million request to keep old aged, blind and disability payments at their current levels as the federal government drops its welfare payments to those recipients and includes them in the Social Security system.

The federal government requires that recipients on the program before the end of the year be given state money to keep their monthly payments from dropping as they are switched to Social Security. Don Leuenberger, an assistant to the director of the Department of Administrative Services, said that Gov. J. James Exon has asked that the budget also include state supplements to old, blind and disabled persons who apply for public assistance after the first of the year.

The next largest increase is the state's half of an anticipated $6 million increase in the cost of Medicaid.

Th state general fund would pay $1.6 million of the requested $2.5 million increase in the cost of county welfare administration.

The other large increase requested is for a quarter of the cost of a requested $3.1 million increase in day care and social services for adults and children, according to Luenberger.

The welfare director said he would make a request for an increase in the statutory maximum grants for welfare mothers before the end of the year. He said a cost-of-living study was now under way.

The $6.4 million requested increse would bring the state's share of welfare costs to $39.1 million in fiscal 1975.

The budget was submitted to the Department of Administrative Services and will go from there to the governor's office and on to the legislature.

County Board Reiterates Its Policy On Purchases

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday approved reiterating and informing officials of its policy regarding purchasing of new equipment by elected officials and department heads.

On a motion by Commissioner Jan Gauger, the board approved its policy that purchase orders be made out before any equipment is purchased and with the exception of very large orders or unusual circumstances competitive prices from at least three suppliers must be submitted.

On large items, the board agreed that bids should be taken.

Also included in the motion and in the directive to be sent out to department heads is that county department heads' refusal to comply with the board's wishes will result in the board's disapproval of claims.

In other action, the board:

— Approved a petition to attach certain lands to Rural Water District No. 1.

— Approved an agreement with Missouri Pacific Railroad for flashing light signals on FAS Route 498.

— Approved the employment of Gordon Kuklish as a social worker for Mental Health Board and use for welfare and Juvenile Court at a starting salary of $10,320.

— Approved the agreement for Technical Services, Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970 and announced approval of a $5,000 federal grant to be used toward the development of a centralized personnel program for Lancaster County.

— Approved extension of the County-City Building Cafeteria lease for the year, Oct. 15, 1973 to Oct. 15, 1974.

Mobster's Wife Departs NYC

New York (AP) — Far from broke, but alone and miserable since her husband's death last February, the widow of mobster Frank Costello has left New York for good, according to her lawyer.

Costello's wife of 59 years, Loretta, has gone to live with her brother, Dudley Geigerman, in New Orleans. She leaves behind a cooperative apartment bondering Central Park, a country estate at Sands Point, on Long Island, and other assets tied up in tax litigation.

"She's lost without Frank," said her lawyer, Harold O. N. Frankel. "She was alone up here. He died and then her dog died. And her brother begged her to come down."

For a decade before Costello died, at age 82, the Internal Revenue Service had liens slapped on much of the property held in common by the couple, to satisfy tax-evasion claims against Costello that the IRS says could amount to several million dollars.

Fuel Resolution OKd By Midwest Governors' Unit

A Midwest Governors Conference task force Tuesday passed a resolution asking the federal government to assure the 15 states that fuel supplies allocated to the states will not be adversely affected by efforts to conserve fuel.

The motion received support from all the governors' representatives present.

The task force is compiling a report on means of alleviating the energy shortage in the Midwest for the next meeting of the conference. Gov. J. James Exon is chairman of the task force.

A more complicated version of that resolution which sought assurance that no state would receive less than its present monthly share of each form of energy was defeated.

The governors' representatives also passed a resolution calling for a "hot line" between the states to keep each other abreast of fuel supplies.

Health Planners Endorse Open Door Center Funds

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Health Planning Council (LCHPC) Tuesday endorsed Open Door Health Center plans to seek funding sufficient to continue the center's operations until Aug. 31, 1974.

The Open Door center, which acts as an information, referral and advocacy service for the poor, Monday was granted emergency funding of $3,495 from the City Council to continue operations for three months.

LCHPC action recommended funding for the center in an amount of $1,165 to $1,500 per month.

The health planners' endorsement was in response to a report of an LCHPC task force appointed a month ago to determine if the Open Door center was performing its intended functions and whether it was better able to serve the public than other existing organizations.

"Generally, the conclusion of the task force is that there is no other single unit form or organization at this time which is accomplishing the goals of information, referral and advocacy which the LCHPC has intended," said the task force report.

"Further, there is evidence to suggest that the Open Door Health Center has had some degree of success in serving residents of Lincoln and Lancaster County who have a need for services of an information, referral and advocacy nature."

The task force did, however, recommend the Open Door center take several "corrective actions" and said LCHPC should "perform a comprehensive review" of its activities prior to any future endorsement of funding requests.

The task force said, for example, that the Open Door board of directors should "more clearly and narrowly define" the function of the center and the role of the executive director.

"Such activities as a neighborhood food-buying service or housing referrals do not seem appropriate," said the task force.

The task force also suggested broader composition for the board of directors and closer cooperation with the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department.

Nebraska Business Indicators Increase

Nearly all of the business indicators for Nebraska increased from June to July and the overall dollar-volume index was at a level of 175.9% of the 1967 average, according to Business in Nebraska, a monthly publication of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Each of the five individual sector indexes increased from June to July, with agriculture and construction both up more than 10 points, according to a review prepared by the College of Business Administration's Bureau of Business Research.

Business indicators at both the state and national level continue to be well above 1972 paces. From July 1972 to July 1973, the Nebraska dollar-volume index increased 18.7% and the national index 14%.

For both Nebraska and the nation the agricultural index increased more than the other sector indexes, followed in order by the manufacturing, construction, distributive and government sectors.

Since inflation has accelerated during 1973, a large share of the dollar-volume increases can be attributed to price increases. The Nebraska physical-volume index increased only 5.8% from July 1972 to July 1973.

During this sam time span, agricultural prices increased 38% in Nebraska and 35.6% nationally, while the national consumer price index went up 5.7% and the wholesale index rose 12.7%.

Retail sales during the first seven months of 1973 expanded rapidly. High farm incomes are believed to be contributing to sharp sales growth in non-metropolitan areas.

Here is a summary of Nebraska's net taxable retail sales by regions (unadjusted for price changes).

County Road Deaths Decline, But Worst Months Upcoming

Surprisingly, the greatest reduction in the number of accidents on all state road systems has occurred on county roads. While that figure is down 41% from last year at this time, the most accident-prone time of the year is still ahead, warns Accident Records Bureau Director Tom Ryan.

In the past, each year has seen an increase in county road accidents.

Rural safety awareness is also showing itself in the number of tractor accidents on highways with a 40% drop from last year at this time, and a 15% decline in railroad crossing accidents, said Ryan. In fact, tractor accidents are 33% under the three-year average, which is an unusually good percentage.

Rollin Schnieder, Extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, added that tractor accidents on both farmsteads and roadways are down this year, too. The only increase was in pedestrian deaths with 41 dead as of Oct. 3, as compared to 20 in October, 1972.

Ryan attributed these significant reductions in accident statistics to safety emphasis directed to the local level through many programs and organizations, such as Extension work and Selective Localized Accident Prevention (SLAP)

But the worst is yet to come, warned Ryan. The last three months of the year traditionally claim the lion's share of accidents. Last year, 30% of the county road deaths occurred in October to December, 44% of the pedestrian deaths (13) were in this time, along with 46% of the accidents caused by wet surfaces and ice, 40% of the farm tractor accidents due to night driving and fall harvesting, and 48% of the total non-fatal school bus accidents.

"Winter weather generates many problems with driving that people are not prepared to handle," explained Ryan.

Rising City Woman Dies

Rising City (AP) — A car-train collision in Rising City early Tuesday afternoon claimed the life of Mary E. Peck, 53, of Rising City.

The State Patrol said Mrs. Peck was alone in her vehicle when it was struck by a Union Pacific freight train.

The death raises the 1973 state highway fatality toll to 334, compared with 385 on this date a year ago.

Open Learning Meet Postponed

A national Conference on Open Learning, originally scheduled for this week in Lincoln, has been postponed till January.

The conference is being sponsored by the State University of Nebraska (SUN) in cooperation with the Great Plains National Instructional Television Library.

It will deal with use of media in non-traditional education.

A SUN spokesman said a time conflict with another conference elsewhere in the country led to the decision to postpone the Lincoln meeting.

City Of Beatrice To Assist Flood Victims

Beatrice — Bypassing most of its regular agenda, the city council moved quickly Monday night to alleviate emergencies resulting from last week's flood.

Several steps were taken, particularly in regard to an estimated 50 families left homeless. Burl Johnson, state deputy adjutant general, speculated that help would be available within a few days through federal disaster programs.

Temporary housing, probably in the form of mobile homes, took top priority as the council approved several measures to expedite its availability. Although the housing itself will be provided by the federal government, the city must supply a site and utilities.

One ticklish matter discussed was the need for inspecting flood-ravaged property to determine whether it is habitable. The Board of Public Works (BPW) was charged with that responsibility and was authorized to hire two building inspectors from other cities.

"It seems like condemning a house now would be hitting with a club when a man is already down, but it's for his own good," said Dick Billingsley, BPW manager. "Many residents could actually benefit from condemnation and a move to temporary housing."

Most of the discussion centered on benefits to individuals, although the city itself will be eligible for considerable reimbursement. Aid will be extended, for example, for damage to public buildings, dike repairs and at least some of the man-hours devoted to fighting the flood.

Among other individual benefits cited:

—Removal of debris from private property so long as the city handles the project or hires a contractor. The BPW was authorized to contract for the job immediately.

—Availability of 5% loans through the Small Business Administration or the Farmers Home Administration. No outright grants are expected, however, because of a recent tightening in legislation.

—Unemployment assistance to persons losing jobs as a direct result of the flood.

—Availability of free legal services; also in an emergency food program.

Designated as local agent to administer the flood relief was City Atty. Earl Ahlschwede. The various federal agencies involved will open offices in the city auditorium.

Appointed to head a site committee for temporary housing were Bill Johnson and Mrs. Ida Kuhn, chairmen of the Planning and Zoning Commission and the Housing Authority, respectively.

Ron Fleece, manager of the Lower Big Blue Natural Resources District, briefly reviewed the flood area and said its contours closely followed the theoretical "100-year flood" as projected by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Although he suggests that the council reconsider the possible adoption of the corps' floodplain report, there was no discussion of the matter.

Fleece reminded that adoption of the report, coupled with floodplain zoning, is required before area residents could be eligible for national food insurance in the future.

Two residents, Ervin Lechner and Dale Milke, said the flood pointed up the need for building a fire station on the west side of town. Lechner also urged the council to push for the hiring of a full-time county Civil Defense director.

Taking up only a few items from its planned agenda, the Council also:

—approved by 4-3 a special use permit to Phillip Stettinger for three lots west of Gibson store to be used as parking lot for a planned Hinky Dinky store.

—referred three bids to contracts and licenses committee on two police cruisers, apparent low Wallman Chrysler and Plymouth Co., $7,900.

—accepted $9,533 bid of Crone-Weston Agency for workmen's compensation insurance.

—accepted $4,218 bid of Penner Insurance Agency for automobile fleet insurance.

BONNET IS OK . . . Grandma Salts and Sam are too.

Grandma Salts Saves Bonnet From Damage In High Waters

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — Up to her elbows in slimy cleanup, Grandma Salts smiled and said she was "still luckier than many of my neighbors."

First, she didn't have as much to lose. And she did save a metal bed and table — also a very special bonnet.

The bonnet, stored as high as her 4-foot, 11-inch frame could stretch, was awarded her for more than 40 years' service to the Salvation Army. It made it through last week's flood just inches above the water line in her tiny rented home.

Known as "the War Cry sergeant" to hundreds of Beatrice residents, the 83-year-old great-grandmother has pounded the streets for decades selling the Salvation Army's well-known publication. Only a handful ever call her Mrs. Florence Salts.

A bachelor son who has been staying with her, Sam, 57, said the ravaging waters "ruined just about everything we had, the same as it did for lots of other folks.

"All we can do is pile the stuff together and hope somebody hauls it away," said the son, a kitchen employe at the Lincoln Regional Center. "We can't even afford to pay somebody for a truck."

Flooded out several times before to a lesser extent, Grandma Salts shrugged off the latest disaster.

"Some old people in the area are worse off than I am," she said, "and I just thank the good Lord we all got out."

Uncertain whether her mud-covered Salvation Army uniform can be salvaged, the oldster said she figures another will be made available if necessary.

"I know the captain pretty good," she said, grinning. "And I need to be out again this week selling the War Cry. With all these people flooded out, the Army can sure use the money."

Police Union Vote Slated In Kearney

The State Court of Industrial Relations has ordered an election to be held to determine if the majority of Kearney City Police officers wish to be represented for collective bargaining by the Fraternal Order of Police, Kearney Lodge No. 5.

The local lodge of the FOP filed suit in the state court in May seeking recognition by the City of Kearney. The decision was handed down Monday by Judge Dean G. Kratz of the Court of Industrial Relations.

The order calls for a secret ballot among "all full time police officers employed by the City of Kearney, including probationary officers, but excluding the chief of police, the assistant chief of police and all other employes of the police department."

A police department spokesmn said the voting unit would include a total of 23 officers.

The ballot will offer two choices, FOP Kearney Lodge No. 5 or no union.

Representatives of the local union and of the city were ordered to meet by Oct. 25 with Judge Richard L. DeBacker of Grand Island. The meeting is to set a date for the election, a cutoff date for determining employes eligible to vote and procedures governing conduct of the election.

The election is to be conducted and supervised by Judge DeBacker.

McHaffie Takes Over VA Hospital

W. Maurice McHaffie has been named director of the Lincoln Veterans Administration Hospital, replacing Howard Ruppen, who will leave Wednesday to become director of the Perry Point, Md., VA Hospital.

Rep. Charles Thone made the announcement Tuesday.

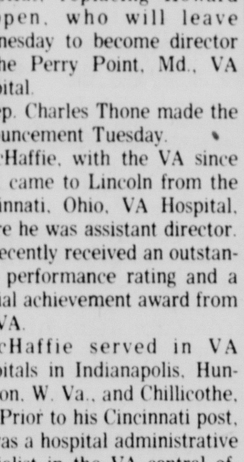

McHaffie, with the VA since 1946, came to Lincoln from the Cincinnati, Ohio, VA Hospital, where he was assistant director. He recently received an outstanding performance rating and a special achievement award from the VA.

McHaffie served in VA Hospitals in Indianapolis, Huntington, W. Va., and Chillicothe, Mo. Prior to his Cincinnati post, he was a hospital administrative specialist in the VA central office in Washington, D.C.

Inmates' Statements Said One-Sided

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

A former Nebraska Penal Complex correctional officer Tuesday said inmates last week gave the state advisory committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights "a one-sided, deeply biased" view of prison guards.

"The Penal Complex inmate is in no position, nor should he be, to act to use voice as an authority on the training of a Penal Complex guard," Donald McPherson of Lincoln declared.

Inmates who told the committee that some guards are "borderline sadists" and "little gods" are persons "who have been known for their constant conflict with the normal standards of moral conduct as established by the majority of the people's society," McPherson said.

The inmates presented their views at hearings in Lincoln last week designed to help the Civil Rights Commission draft a bill of rights for inmates.

"What rights should a convicted felon have at taxpayer's expense after he has had a fair trial, and possibly several retrials, almost invariably at the expense of the taxpaying citizen?" McPherson asked.

"What about the rights violated at the expense of the person he assaulted, raped, robbed or killed?"

And, McPherson questioned, "how in the world can a person who has proven by his own actions — on the 'street' and 'behind the walls' — that he can't abide by even the simplest of rules of decent conduct (and) can't even be trusted by his own contemporaries expect to be heard to establish rules of conduct in a Penal Complex?"

The inmate's "so-called citizen's rights have been restricted" by his very incarceration, McPherson noted.

But, upon entry into the Penal Complex, he said, "the new inmate is given every opportunity to present himself as a respectable individual, is treated with courtesy and respect, and is only required to respond in a like manner.

"Of course, he is in a controlled situation, and he must respond in an approved manner. He is given a book of 'rules of conduct' and, if followed, has absolutely no trouble during his confinement."

An infraction will bring "immediate correction," McPherson said, "but, here again, only to the degree of the infraction and his attitude before the disciplinary board."

Answering inmate allegations, McPherson said "there is no such thing as a 'goon squad' or a shakedown to harrass an inmate" at the Penal Complex.

"Shakedowns are a necessary and distasteful operation, required to control the constant flow of contraband from all areas of the Penal Complex," he said.

"There are inmates that will constantly try to conceal homemade weapons, chemicals and other material, all dangerous to the inmate population and to society."

But visiting citizens are also subject to a shakedown, he noted.

"A Penal Complex employe who indicates a brutality streak or is overly zealous in his actions is subject to immediate dismissal," McPherson said.

"On the other hand, the Penal Complex employe who exhibits habits of good judgment, deals with inmates fairly and squarely, who doesn't bend the rules, who follows the directives of his superiors to the letter, who can't be 'conned' or 'bought' by the inmate is immediately classed by the inmate population as 'a tough guy,' and is constantly harrassed by the inmate population, with no power to legally retaliate.

"In a day's time, this so-called 'touch guy guard' can be called every sort of obscene name, be spit on, have human excrement thrown on him, be splattered with paint, roughed up if cornered and even killed, and his only recourse is to attempt to defend himself without inflicting injury to the inmate, or suffer disciplinary action or dismissal from his employment."

As for inmate allegations of sadistic behavior by some guards, McPherson said:

"Sadism begins with an inmate who steals a table knife from the dining room and passes it to a known killer, hoping to gain favor with his hero and, at the same time, possibly get to witness or help in the killing of a guard or another inmate just for the 'kicks' gained at the sight of blood.

"Sadism is the gathering of bits of metal over long periods of time to make a 'bomb' to drop on a guard or another hated inmate from three tiers above ground level.

"Sadism is the physical restraint of a young offender by several older inmates in order that the new offender can be sexually assaulted numerous times by an 'old con' or other several sexual deviates."

McPherson said he is a former guard, correctional officer and guard shift lieutenant at the Penal Complex. He has been injured a number of times while helping control disturbances at the institution.

NACI Elects Directors

The Nebraska Association of Commerce & Industry elected or re-elected 17 Nebraska businessmen to the NACI board of directors, executive vice president Glenn J. McEniry said Tuesday.

The directors will begin their terms at NACI's 61st annual meeting at the New Tower Hotel Courts in Omaha Oct. 25.

Those elected to three-year terms are: Gilbert R. Gadzikowski, executive vice president, Omaha National Bank; William C. Smith, president, First National Lincoln; William R. Pettigrew, vice president, executive department, Union Pacific Railroad Co., Omaha; Edward T. Robinson, Jr., president, J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo.

Those elected to two-year terms are: D. W. Hill, general manager, Nebraska Public Power District, Columbus; Lee Jacobson, president, Lexington Mill & Elevator Co., Lexington; Paul J. Bender Sr., partner, Jacob Bender & Son, Sutton; Ernest J. Prosser, vice president, Southeast Nebraska Telephone Co., Falls City.

Those elected to one-year-terms are: Ken Wortman, president, Wortman Motor Co., Aurora; L. Martin LeBus, vice president-treasurer, Iowa Beef Processors Inc., Dakota City; Ivan Paulsen, vice president and general manager, Paulsen Building & Supply, Inc., Cozad.

Paine Given Added Duties

The Nebraska Public Service Commission announced Tuesday that James C. Paine, director of motor transportation for the commission, will take on the additional responsibilities of director of rates and services.

The position was opened by the resignation of Gordon Ganka, who resigned to take a similar position in Georgia.

Belgrade Gets Sewer Project

A $103,000 sewage improvement project has been approved for Belgrade, Neb., Gov. J. James Exon said Tuesday.

The federal government will pay 75% of the cost and state and local government will split the rest.

SCULPTURE GARDEN CROWD . . . enjoys comfortable noon hour with folksinger Seeger.

Seeger Presents Pleasant Outdoor Sing

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

It was . . . comfortable.

Pete Seeger spent the noon hour Tuesday in the place called Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery Sculpture Garden.

He planned to sing, according to the announcements.

That's what he did, plainly, simply and with a sort of underplayed zest beneath a blue October sky hung with rolls of white fleece.

There was, for example, the ballad of the young woman who started by swallowing the lie and ended up liberating a bellyfull of fluff, rules and other items, including a pill.

"She might have said no, but she hadn't the will," sang the wiry folksinger with the salt and pepper beard and the small black skipper's hat.

The hour, which cost nothing, attracted a crowd of hundreds who sat on the grass, walks and under the trees protestors saved from bulldozers several years ago.

Between the pickin' and singing, Seeger talked.

"The real jobs that are being done around the world are being done by people who say, 'I'm going to stick it out here,'" he said.

"I find myself in the position of the old man who, after a youth of debauchery, tells young people to walk the straight and narrow," said Seeger, who spent much of his youth on the road.

"I say travel when you're young but don't make the mistake, as some intellectuals do, that it doesn't make any difference if you ever stop," Seeger said.

Seeger told the crowd that it wasn't true that all folksongs were good songs.

"Damn, Damn, Damn the Filipinos," was one of the songs he said were "easy to skip over" because he was ashamed of them.

One of the songs Seeger, a member of the Hudson Rover Sloop (conservation) Group, sang was about "GARBAGE, garbage, garbage, garbage."

The thing to remember about ecology is that "everything is connected," Seeger said.

He began tapping hit foot, strumming his banjo and singing.

"There once was a tree . . ."

Judge Spends $2,000 To Lock Out Burglars

Omaha (AP) — A district judge in Omaha says an upsurge in crime has forced him to equip his home "like a jail" with burglar alarms and to carry a gun on occasion.

"I frequently work at nights and walk three blocks from my office armed with a .38 revolver in hand," Judge Theodore Richling told the Omaha Women's Club. "I want to get down to my car unharmed."

Richling referred to "the golden years" of yesteryear, and said "we gave of ourselves, we gave love."

What there is now, he said, "is something where people like me spend $2,000 to make a house a jail to lock the burglars out."

The judge declared: "Never in history have we ever had proportionately as much violent, vicious crime as we have today."

Judge Richling cited what he celled "useless gestures" of sentencing. "Sometimes the criminal gets home before I get home," he said. "I work late."

Richling continued: "I wonder if the judge should just be the supervisor of the court and then turn over the matter to the executive branch."

Richling said it sometimes doesn't make a difference how many times a person is sentenced. "It'll be commuted and he'll be back out on the streets," the judge said.

"I don't believe in locking everybody up," Richling said. "But there is a small category of criminals who have no salvage in them."

IRS Asked To Audit Ford's Tax Returns

Washington (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee Tuesday asked for an Internal Revenue Service audit of Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford's income tax returns for the last five years.

Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said the committee also is seeking access to Ford's tax returns for the last seven years, a period coinciding with his service as House Republican leader.

Cross Burned Into Lawn Of Black Omaha Couple

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A black couple, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Watkins, moved into a new home in one of Omaha's more sive new subdivisions over the weekend. Monday night, someone burned a cross into the lawn in front of their home.

Watkins is president of Beaver Laboratories, which manufacturs animal vaccines.

"Most of our neighbors welcomed us very warmly," Mrs. Watkins said. "Some of them dropped in with baked goods, and just wanted to get acquainted."

"Obviously," she said, "there are a few glaring exceptions."

Mrs. Watkins said she was washing dishes and her husband was sitting in the family room when some neighborhood children ran to the door to tell them their yard was on fire.

Mrs. Watkins kept a sense of humor about the incident

Some cities provide newspaper boys with plastic bags to put their papers in so that customers do not receive wet papers. For several days I have received sopping wet papers which I cannot read.

It seems a waste to pay monthly subscriptions and receive no readable news. Why doesn't The Lincoln Star provide these bags for papers and what can a customer do when does not receive a newspaper intact?

— Concerned, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: As the Lincoln area has received record breaking rainfall in September and October, ACTION LINE assures you you weren't the only one that received several messy papers.

The Lincoln Star, as many newspapers, considers it the newspaper's responsibility to get papers to the carriers in good condition. But because the carriers are not employes of the newspaper but independent businessmen, the newspaper considers it the newsboy's responsibility to get papers to customers in a readable state.

The Lincoln Star provides plastic bags to the newsboys at a cost of 50 cents per hundred.

However, The Lincoln Star feels a subscriber is entitled to a good paper and will send out an additional paper (free of charge) by messenger when a complaint is phoned in.

On Jan. 8 we purchased tickets for AMTRAK from the Allied Tours Travel Agency at Norfolk to go from Phoenix to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Ogden, Denver and Omaha. We used only the Phoenix to Los Angeles portion and brought the remaining tickets to Allied Tours for a refund.

Allied Tours contacted the AMTRAK office in Washington, D.C. by mail April 17 and July 25, but we still have received no refund. Can ACTION LINE get the refund for us?

— Conrad C. Timpe, Madison

ACTION LINE: Alfred Heverman, supervisor of redemption at AMTRAK in Washington, D.C. said the company made out a refund check to Allied Tours Oct. 5 and mailed it with a letter Oct. 11.

Allied Tours received the check Tuesday (and mailed it to you that same day) for the total amount of $172.19.

After living in the So. 48th St. area for several years, I don't think I could bear walking down the street if all the trees which house such a great variety of birds and make the neighborhood so pleasant were chopped down. I know that plans are being made to widen the street. Does that mean all those lovely trees which line both sides of the street will be removed?

— T.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dick Erixson, city engineer, said it all depends upon the design of the street.

If the four-lane divided facility presently being contemplated is approved, all trees in the public right-of-way will have to come down.

However, Erixson said it has become a matter of course with any of the city street projects, to make an attempt to replace trees. Some are even planted on private property when there isn't enough public property available after widening.

Public hearings are a necessary procedure in street development projects and when the hearings begin your comments will be welcomed.

On July 12 I was involved in an automobile accident in Denver. As a result, five members of my family were treated as outpatients at the Denver General Hospital. I have received billings for only two of the injured persons and cannot settle with the insurance company until I receive all of the itemized billings. Can you help?

— Susan Vernon, Fairbury

ACTION LINE: Ron Conway, credit manager of the Denver General Hospital, said that the hospital handles over 1,000 outpatients daily. He said that your billings would be placed in the mail no later than Tuesday, Oct. 16.

I've noticed recently on cable television that when Channel 6 in Omaha breaks for local commercials, Channel 10 commercials from have been on. Can ACTION LINE explain this?

— Perplexed, Lincoln

ACTION: The problem isn't half as confusing as the answer.

Bill Strube, chief engineer for WOW-TV in Omaha, said there's really no problem.

FCC regulations require the cable television system in Lincoln (TV-Transmission Inc.) to protect the exclusivity of Channel 10's network programming. This means that when 10 and 6 are broadcasting the same network program, the cable system has to throw a switch and broadcast 10's signal on both 10 and 6.

When the programs originate locally, the switch is thrown the other way, and you receive both signals.

However Strube noted that WOW has complained to the cable system about some laxity in getting the switch thrown back when the 10 p.m. newscasts start. At times local news is broadcast on both channels in the cable system.

I sent in a plate from an Oneida Dinnerware set that had been broken. The set had a two year guarantee, but I have heard nothing from the company. Can ACTION LINE find out what's delaying the replacement, it's been two months?

— Waiting, David City

ACTION LINE: A letter of apology requesting the type pattern you have is on its way.

Mrs. Mariam Marsh, with the firm's customer relations department, said you should have long since received the replacement, and she can only think there was a mix up in the mail.

She said she was very sorry for the delay and your inconvenience, and assured ACTION LINE that your plate will be replaced.

With winter drawing near, I'd like to know what steps can be taken against able-bodied people who refuse to scoop their sidewalks.

— A Letter Carrier, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It all depends on which sidewalks you're talking about.

Jim Faimon, assistant city attorney, said the Lincoln Municipal Code specifies that the public sidewalk has to be scooped within 24 hours after snow has stopped falling.

For enforcement of this ordinance, you can call the city sidewalk inspector at the County-City Building.

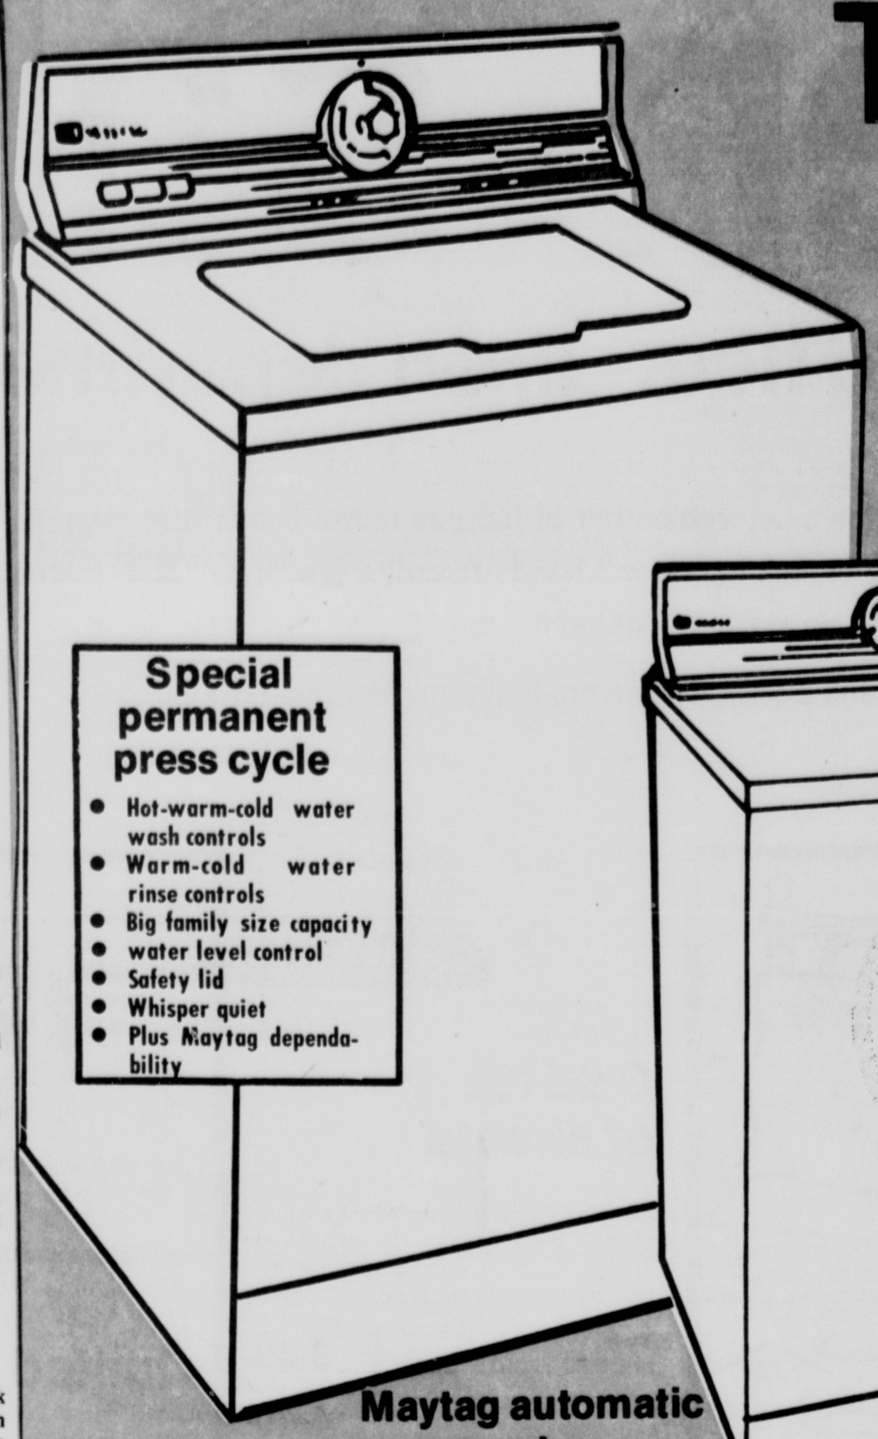

But for other walks, there's really nothing that you can do, except complain to the homeowner.

Conte Hooked On Gardening

Springfield, Md. (AP) — Rep. Silvio Conte started a 20-by-4-foot vegetable garden at his suburban home last spring as a symbolic protest against food costs. Now, says the Massachusetts Republican, "I'm really hooked."

Conte says the family table has benefitted from homegrown radishes, string beans, lettuce and zucchini "coming out of my ears."

And the work isn't too hard, either, he maintained — after initial spading and planting, all you do is watch out for parasites and spread around the horse manure.

Program To Aid Veterans In Need

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The newly-organized Special Veterans Talent Search Program intends to do just what its name says — search out veterans in need.

The target veteran is the disadvantaged, unemployed, poorly-motivated sort who is unaware of the benefits available to him.

Frustrated by the mounds of paperwork and phone-calling, this person more often than not gives up and lets his benefits go by the boards.

Funded By HEW

Now counselors Arlene Garcia and Velmo Holm, who run the HEW-funded program in Lincoln, are willing to do some of the busy-work that stands between the veteran and his benefits. "We'd rather that the poorly-motivated veteran not have a negative experience," they explained.

Operating out of an office in Seaton Hall on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus, the pair expects to spend a lot of time out in the field making contacts with veterans both male and female. "we're going to have to dig for the person," they declared.

Although veterans receive reams of information during their military out-processing, their interest is more in returning to civilian life than in learning about the benefits they take with them, believe Garcia and Holm.

Benefits changing

Also, benefits are constantly changing, stressed the pair, "even if the government provides pamphlets."

Both graduate students at UNL, Garcia and Holm are concerned about running a program with a "personal touch."

"We're interested in the whole person — to make his life more livable and his readjustment easier," said Garcia.

Holm told of a particular veteran who had returned to school unexpectedly but had no money to buy books. "He couldn't get anywhere because he didn't know who to go to," explained Holm who was able to arrange credit for the student's books until his first GI payment arrived.

CHECKING BENEFITS . . . Velmo Holm and Arlene Garcia.

Following a personal approach, Garcia and Holm have made the rounds of several community agencies so they could become familiar with a person at each. They hope that these groups will refer veterans to their program.

Veteran Inmates

Holm is also working with veteran inmates at the reformatory to keep them in touch the services available to them following their release.

Emphasizing a responsibility to all veterans, Holm and Garcia are willing to field questions and research eligibility for a variety of veteran services from the medical field to the area of loans, insurance and compensations.

"Even the well-motivated veteran is often uninformed," they noted.

The pair told of one veteran who didn't want to take advantage of his educational benefits because he thought he would be reducing his GI home loan.

By canvassing lists of veterans in the area and checking school drop-outs, the counselors are actively seeking young men and women who might be given a boost by their benefits.

"We think we can contact a lot of disadvantaged veterans who have been frustrated by the non-personal agencies they've dealt with before," Holm said with optimism.

Crowds Applaud Japan's Premier

London (AP) — Prime Minister Kakeui Tanaka of Japan was applauded by several thousand Englishmen as he arrived at Buckingham Palace to meet the queen.

Queen Elizabeth II interrupted a holiday in Scotland to greet Tanaka, his daughter and Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

Scholarships Given

Two Lincoln students have been awarded $200 Minerua De Pue Meissner Memorial Scholarships for 1973-74.

The two University of Nebraska-Lincoln seniors are: Kenneth R. Renner, son of Mrs. Marcella Renner and Douglas A. Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson.

New Testament Scholar To Speak

New Testament scholar Dr. William R. Farmer, Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University, will be resource person for a Pastors' Colloquium at Nebraska Wesleyan University Friday.

Dr. Farmer, a graduate of Occidental College, Cambridge University and Union Theological Seminary, will speak at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., and participate in a panel discussion at 2 p.m.

His morning topic is "Jesus and the Established World of Jewish Piety," and his afternoon speech is "The Christian and the Established World of American Piety."

Ex-Palestinian Predicts Mideast War

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Abe Lutfiyya, a Palestinian refugee in Lincoln, has been calling the plays of the present Middle East conflict like a living room quarterback.

And each time he's seen his predictions played out on the battlefields thousands of miles away.

"I know the mentality of the people there," said the 33-year-old American citizen of three years.

Diagramming the embattled area as a football field with a 50-yard-line border first between Egypt and Israel and then between Syria and Israel, Lutfiyya proceeded to give this reporter a play-by-play account of the war action so far.

Takes No Side

Like a neutral sportscaster, he says he calls it as he sees it, "not siding with either side."

Lutfiyya said he sensed that Egypt was on the brink of a big battle when that country attempted to renew diplomatic relations with the U.S. a few days before war broke out.

"Anyone with common sense could see it was a trick," he said.

An Arab summit meeting held 15 days before the start of the war was another clue for the Palestinian refugee, who had a premonition of the war 10 days before it got underway.

Egypt and Syria "learned a good lesson" from the 1967 war, believes Lutfiyya, who noted how the element of surprise worked successfully for the Egyptians this time.

On the third day of the war, Lutfiyya predicted that Israel would concentrate its forces on the Syrian front. He was sure they would push back the initial Syrian advance into Israeli territory. A week later, Israeli forces are about 20 miles from the Syrian capital of Damascus.

Entry Predicted

On the fifth day, he predicted that King Hussein of Jordon would enter the war with support troops, but would not open a third front because his capital, Amman, is only 20 miles from the Israeli border. This happened last Saturday, the eighth day of the conflict.

When it comes to a final prediction, Lutfiyya says he can't pick a winner. In this war, he believes, there can be no real winner until a "permanent solution that satisfies both Arabs and Israelis" is found.

STAR PHOTO

LUTFIYYA . . . follows course of war.

"Somebody at some time has to give up or there will always be another war in that area," Lutfiyya philosophized.

But Lutfiyya's real concern is for the million and a half Palestinian refugees who have been left homeless in the troubled Middle East.

'Had It In Mind'

Aware of the hardships of these people, Lutfiyya "had it in my mind" to become an American citizen when he came to this country in 1962 as a student.

As an American citizen he has been able to make two trips back to his native village of Beitin, five miles northeast of Jerusalem on the Israeli-occupied West Bank, where his mother, brothers and a sister live. On a Jordanian passport, which he had when he came to the States, such visits to his home would not be possible, he said.

Even today Lutfiyya calls his native land Palestine, declaring that he will never call it Israel or Jordan. "When you're born in a country, it's very difficult to change its name."

Lutfiyya, who is married and has a month-old son, says he feels very "comfortable and happy" in the United States.

"I would be ashamed to carry either Israeli or Jordanian citizenship," he declared. "I am 100% American-minded."

But he did admit that the only citizenship he might ever consider accepting would be Palestinian.

Lawsuit Challenges Tax-Exempt Storage

The constitutionality of a 1973 law which permits tax exemption of property stored in licensed warehouses is being challenged in a suit filed Tuesday in Lancaster District Court by Star Warehousing Co.

Named defendants in the action are the State of Nebraska, Gov. J. James Exon and State Tax Commissioner William Peters.

The plaintiff company contends that LB534, which was passed by the 1973 Legislature without the emergency clause, violates the constitution in that it contains broad language and violates the uniformity requirements by allowing the Legislature to exempt from ad valorem taxation certain goods, wares and merchandise while in licensed warehouses or storage areas "whether manufactured, processed, produced or otherwise originating within or without the state."

According to the petition, LB534 is special legislation granting a corporation, an association or an individual special privileges and immunity from taxation by qualifying as bonded and licensed warehouses.

The plaintiffs further contend that the law contains more than one subject, is vague and indefinite in that it is impossible to determine what specific property is intended for and what property is finally placed in shipment outside the state.

"LB534 discriminates between citizens of the United States in regard to the ownership, possession and enjoyment of property in that tax exemption is granted upon the basis of obtaining a license and bond for a warehouse," the petition charges.

According to the petition, the title of LB534 contains no reference or words pertaining to interstate commerce in violation of the constitution which provides that "goods, wares and merchandise in interstate commerce through the state of Nebraska shall not have acquired a situs for taxation."

We'd like you to know:

Why energy is short in the U.S.

There's talk around that the energy shortage is contrived.
It's not. It's real.
And so are its causes.

The Guts of the Problem

In the U.S., essentially all of our energy (including electricity) comes from oil, natural gas, coal, nuclear energy, or hydropower. The growth of all five of these primary sources has been slowed down. In the past, when one source of energy became limited, there was enough spare capacity in the others to make up the difference. That's not true any more. That's why we have an energy shortage.

How did this happen? Let's look at the energy sources one at a time.

Natural Gas

There's a big demand for natural gas. It causes little pollution. And since the mid-1950's, natural gas prices have been held too low by the Federal Power Commission. The low price has done two things:
1) Artificially stimulated demand for gas.
2) Discouraged people from spending money to find more. Investment slows down where there's less chance to make a fair profit.

So this country's production of natural gas is peaking out.

Coal

Coal is the country's most abundant fossil fuel resource. But much of it is high in sulfur. Many industries that use this high-sulfur coal have not been able to meet the standards set by the Clean Air Act of 1970. So we haven't been using as much coal as everybody hoped. Other fuels have had to fill this gap.

Nuclear Power

The growth in nuclear power has been slow. Nuclear reactors are running into delays in design and construction. And it's hard to find places to build nuclear plants. Fifty of the fifty-six plants that were expected to start up between 1972 and 1975 are substantially behind schedule. So nuclear power is supplying less energy than was expected a few years ago.

Hydropower

Hydropower is very important in some areas, but it has supplied only a small part of the country's total energy needs for a long time. Most of the places where dams could be built have already been used. Environmental factors are delaying the few that are left.

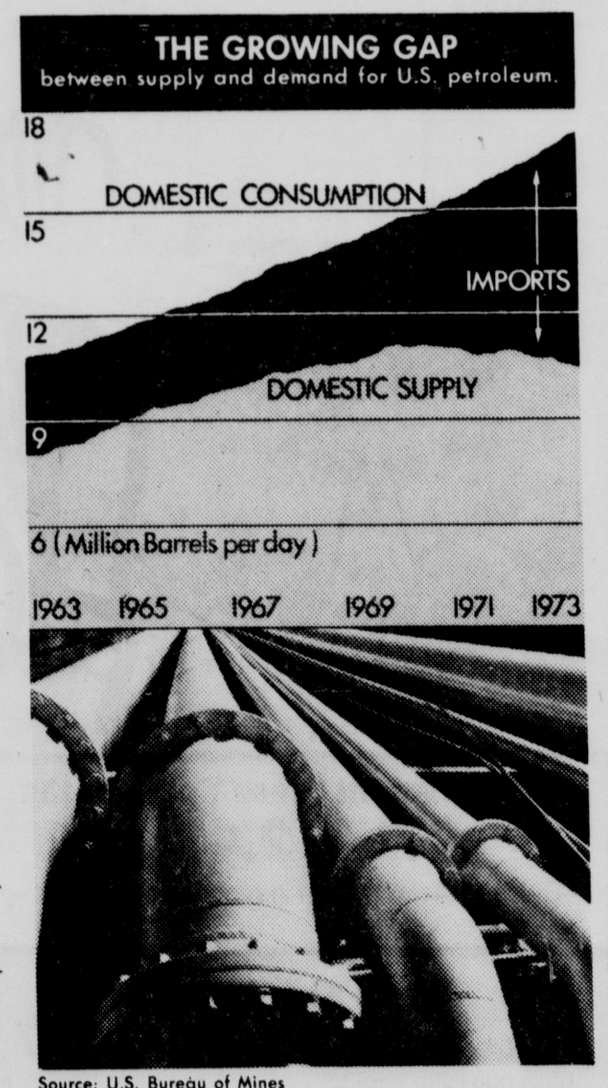

Oil Has Had to Take Up the Slack

Oil has been called upon to make up for the lagging growth in other energy sources – natural gas, coal, nuclear energy – and carry its own share to boot.

But oil has growth problems, too. The search for new fields offshore has been slowed down. Lease sales for drilling in these high-potential areas have been delayed. Oil already found in Alaska and the Santa Barbara Channel of California isn't being produced because of environmental objections. Virtually all existing fields are producing at full efficient capacity. Production is declining and there is not enough to meet the demand.

The result?

The U.S. must import oil from other countries. This year about one-third of the country's requirements will have to be met by imports. If domestic supplies are not developed more rapidly, we'll have to import 65% of our oil by 1985 to meet U.S. demand.

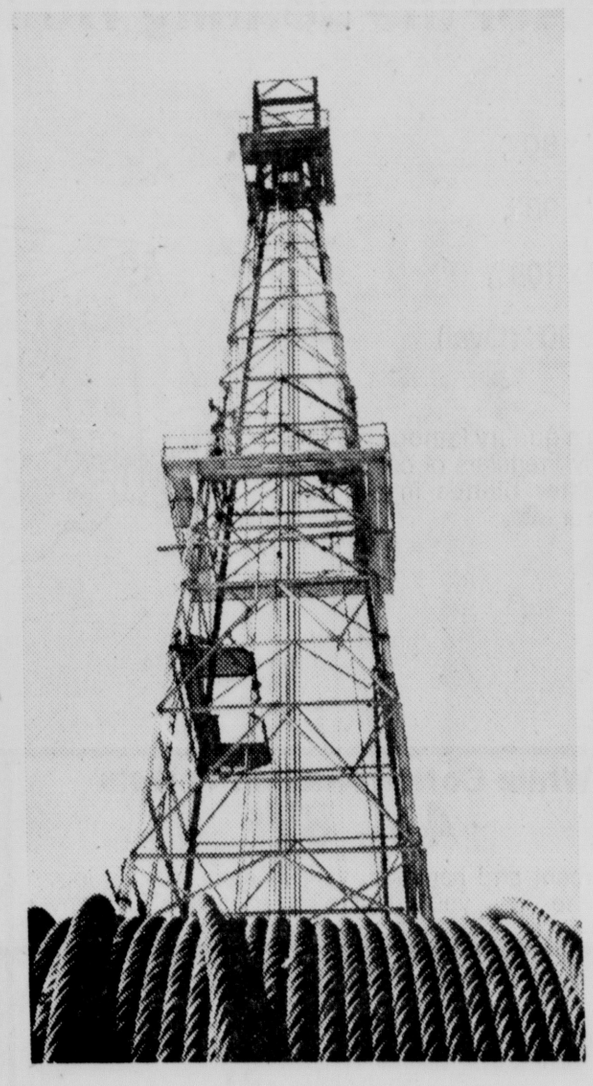

Source: U.S. Bureau of Mines

We Need More Refineries

Bringing in more crude oil will help, but it won't solve the problem right away. This is because the existing refining capacity in the U.S. is simply not enough to meet product requirements. In the past, U.S. Government policies had the effect of discouraging the construction of refineries in this country. Although recent policy changes have stimulated plans for expansion of U.S. refining capacity, building new facilities will take several years.

Until new refineries are built, the U.S. will have to import more and more finished products (gasoline, heating oil, and heavy fuel oil) as well as more crude oil.

The High Cost of Imports

Because energy demands in other countries are increasing, too, the U.S. will have to compete in the world market for these products. But the world supply of crude oil and finished products is tight and uncertain. So prices are going up. They are already well above U.S. prices, which are controlled by the Government.

These are some of the causes and results of the energy shortage. They're all quite real, not contrived.

What Can Be Done About It?

For the time being, the United States will have to import more high-cost foreign crude oil and finished products, if they're available.

U.S. refineries will have to continue to operate as close to capacity as possible.

You can help! Drive slower; join car pools; go easy on the air conditioner; turn down thermostats a degree or two in winter; and take a thousand and one other small steps that add up to cash savings for each consumer and major energy savings for the country.

But we have to do something else, too.

We have to recognize that the energy problem is real – not contrived. And that it's time to take action to implement solutions. We need to get on with the job of developing all of the country's energy sources – coal, nuclear power, oil and gas. We've run out of time for debate and delay.

Don't you agree?

Top City Hall Officials Gone

If you were in City Hall Tuesday looking for the mayor, police chief, finance director, city attorney or the administrator of the Lincoln Electric System — you were out of luck.

Not only were those top officials not in the building, they weren't in the city either.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf is attending a conference with Airport Authority members in Dallas, Tex., this week.

Police Chief Joe Carroll is participating in the Nebraska Peace Officers Association convention in Norfolk.

City Atty. Dick Wood, Finance Director James Mallon and LES Administrator Walt Canney are on a tour of public power facilities in the central part of the state. That tour is sponsored by the National Bank of Commerce in cooperation with the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District.

NBC President Paul Amen explained that the bank and the district periodically sponsor tours of the district's facilities for public officials, educational leaders and leading businessmen to give the officials insight into the importance of the district.

The tour runs through Thursday. The mayor is expected to return to his office Friday afternoon.

Meanwhile, despite the absence of some of the city's top administrators, it appeared to be business as usual in City Hall Tuesday.

Youth Services Gets 6 VISTA Volunteers

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Six VISTA volunteers will begin working Thursday as outreach workers for the Youth Service System(YSS) of Lincoln and Lancaster County.

YSS Director James Arnot said the six came to Lincoln "as the result of an application submitted to ACTION, the umbrella agency for volunteer services at the federal level."

Arnot said four more VISTA workers will arrive in Lincoln in January 1974. "Two of the four in January are to be locally recruited by the YSS," he said.

YSS has discovered through evaluations that its referrals are largely those youths who are already in trouble, according to Arnot. He said the new outreach workers will "let persons know what services and agencies are available to them before they get into trouble."

He stressed that YSS serves not only low-income and minority clients, adding that the "services are available to anybody in the city and the county."

The six new VISTA volunteers are:

—Nancy Bach, 22, of Madison, Wis. She graduated from the University of Wisconsin at Madison with a degree in behavioral disabilities, then spent two summers working at a camp in Almond, Wis., for children with learning disabilities and behavioral problems.

—John A. Wenston, 23, of Pittsburgh, Pa. He is a philosophy graduate of Yale College. He worked for one year at an institute for retarded children in Connecticut and another year for the Pennsylvania Welfare Department.

—Sue J. Kendall, 22, of Pittsfield, Mass. A graduate of Fitchburg (Mass.) State College in elementary education and history, Kendall worked for two years in a residential treatment center for girls.

—Cindy Farrell, 22, of Falls Church, Va. She holds a degree in social work from East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. She worked as an educational superviser for a Boys Club of America in Pitt County, N.C.

—Patricia M. Gunn, 21, Long Island, N.Y. She graduated in psychology from C. W. Post College at Brookville, Long Island, worked in New York civic groups dealing with drug abuse, and at Queens (N.Y.) Children's Hospital.

—Mariclare Thomas, 22, of Madison, Wis. She holds a degree in economics and psychology from Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Thomas worked for a year as a counselor in a crisis intervention center at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Wenston and Farrell initially will work with YSS intake and referral. Bach and Thomas will work in the Freeway Station. Gunn and Kendall will work with YSS' client tracking system.

YSS Associate Director Judy Seward spent four days in Kansas City in a VISTA orientation with the volunteers early in October.

Since the six arrived in Lincoln Oct. 6, they have been meeting with high school principals, the mayor and city and county officials, visiting local human service agencies and their staffs, and attending state commission meetings — all to get acquainted with Lincoln and its services.

The volunteers each will receive $180 a month during the year they are in Lincoln. They cannot hold outside jobs or go to school, and theoretically are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"Human services can't be locked in" on a regular schedule, Arnot said.

Kendall told newsmen Tuesday, "Our main objective is to inform the city that there is a Youth Service System if they need it, so they won't get in trouble before they get there."

She added that the volunteers want to "saturate the city with the services that are offered, so that when we leave here in a year," Lincolnites will be aware of YSS.

Wenston said the six will begin their work in the schools and "try to increase the amount of self-referrals."

Collective Bargaining Discussed By Nurses

Professionals in hospital care "are sick of the way we're being treated," stated Marge Berger, but they're not "risk-takers" and are afraid to form a union for fear of losing their jobs.

Miss Berger, of Lincoln General Hospital, and 26 other registered nurses met in Lincoln Tuesday night to discuss how RNs in the three accredited Lincoln hospitals can combine to effect improvements in patient care, implement collective bargaining, and influence hospitals' policies, practices and conditions.

Their discussion centered mainly on what group — the AFL-CIO, Nebraska Nurses Association(NNA) or the American Nurses Association (ANA) — could provide the best leadership and most effectively negotiate for the nurses.

Lois Merrill of Omaha, NNA president, submitted that the primary purpose of a nurses' group would be to form an independent voice for an institution, with the ultimate clout of negotiating for a contract. If a local's effort fails, she said, then NNA would provide legal assistance.

However, NNA can represent only registered or professional nurses. The nurses present expressed concern that licensed practical nurses might not be represented by the proposed union, if two separate bargaining agencies were required.

Mrs. Martha Brown of Lincoln General said she thinks it is impossible for all Lincoln nurses to be covered under one contract.

Miss Merrill said the nurses could form three local units, and maintain a liaison group, then form contracts similar on major issues, such as salaries, nursing representation in hospital operations, and consistency of policies — for example, honoring promised time off.

Youngest Mayor Will Run Again;

Ayrshire, Iowa (AP) — Mayor Jody Smith isn't ready to retire. The Republican chief executive for the last two years announced he'll seek a second term in the November election.

Smith is 20 years old, the nation's youngest mayor.

Ruckelshaus Imports Finnish Girl; Violation Eyed

©The New York Times

Washington — The disclosure that Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus and his wife have imported a young Finnish woman to help out in their household, apparently in violation of immigration laws, is being investigated by a congressional subcommittee.

In addition, there is some pressure for abolition of the small, highly restricted program — designed only for young people with a bona fide personal relationship to U.S. families — that has provided a loophole for such undertakings.

The series of events through which the Ruckelshauses were allowed to bring in Kaaja-Leena Rikkonen as an "au pair" girl, a live-in domestic helper, despite evidence that she was not a friend of the family and had been hired through a Helsinki newspaper ad, is being investigated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, according to Edward O'Connor, the associate deputy commissioner for travel.

The subcommittee on legal and monetary affairs of the House Government Operations Committee is also "taking a look at" the incident according to subcommittee Chairman William J. Randall, D-Mo.

O'Connor said the service was "trying to run down" the details of Miss Rikkonen's admission to the United States. He said Mrs. Retta Noto, the official of the Washington District who approved Miss Rikkonen's entry on a B-2 or visitor's visa in July, has been interviewed, but that neither Ruckelshaus nor his wife, Jill, a White House consultant, had been interviewed. He said there might be some statement on the matter by the end of this week.

What has become increasingly clear in the two weeks since the Ruckelshaus case became public is that misuse of the so-called "au pair" program is widespread. The name itself is a misnomer; there is no U.S. equivalent of the European "au pair" or exchange programs in which young women from one country spend a few months or more as part-time household helpers in families of another country, earning pocket money and a chance to improve their languages.

What does exist, and is widely abused by families wanting a cheap, reliable extra pair of hands to help with children and household chores, is a provision that allows U.S. families to bring in, on visitors' visas, young people who are known to them — the children of friends abroad, perhaps — to live with them for a year and receive pocket money in exchange for a few hours' help a week.

James Kiley, chief of public services in the visa office of the State Department, estimates that no more than 1,000 to 2,000 young people each year are legitimatley involved in the program, whose abolition is reportedly now under discussion as a possible way of closing this loophole.

Miss Rikkonen, according to a letter from Mrs. Ruckelshaus in May outlining the terms of her employment, was hired at $50 a week plus room and board to work a 5½-day week, including care of their five children and washing and ironing.

Both Mrs. Ruckelshaus and her husband have denied knowing that Miss Rikkonen's entry on a visitor's visa violated the law.

To bring in a domestic worker legally is a lengthy process, requiring Labor Department certification, and for workers from the Western Hemisphere, a wait of up to two years before they can be admitted to this country. It also requires an employer to undertake, in writing, to pay the worker the area's "prevailing" rate — $2 and hour in Washington — for a 40-hour week, and to pay overtime.

Tapes Issue Said 'Blown Out Of All Proportion'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Tuesday the issue of the presidential Watergate tapes has been "blown out of all proportion" and that compromise is still possible.

Mansfield said the Senate Rules Committee must be the final judge of whether the confirmation of House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford as vice president should be tied to the tapes.

Some members of Congress have suggested holding up the Ford nomination pending a resolution of the tapes issue by the Supreme Court or a final decision by President Nixon of how to respond.

Mansfield said the President can offer Watergate committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and other panel members a private hearings, a private hearing of those parts of the tapes directly related to Watergate.

But he said he has no information from the White House or the Senate committee that such a compromise is being discussed.

Officials Weighing Clean-Air Proposals

By The Associated Press

Officials in 17 areas weighed new clean-air proposals on Tuesday and tried to figure out how and whether they could meet the new regulations aimed mainly at cutting the number of vehicles on the road.

The Environmental Protection Agency announced on Monday it had approved transportation control plans for 17 areas — five of them in California — in an effort to meet 1977 clean-air deadlines set by Congress.

George Taylor, deputy executive director for the California Air Resources Board, noted that the rules called for installation of pollution control devices on older cars and said, "Whether we meet this will depend on whether a suitable device is developed for these vehicles."

Taylor said most of the California areas will need more time to meet mass transit proposals and added: "The regulations are probably not meetable in the Los Angeles area even with more time. There are too many people."

Russell E. Train, EPA administrator, conceded on Monday that the new restrictions, which range up to fuel rationing, were "unreasonable" and said he would ask Congress for authority to extend the deadline for areas in serious trouble.

Massachusetts officials began hearings on Monday on the latest plans which in Boston would ban on-street parking from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. and put a surcharge on off-street parking and in Springfield would ban all traffic but buses and essential delivery trucks from the downtown streets.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce said it was completely opposed to the regulations which, it said, would cut the number of shoppers and force some stores out of business.

An earlier plan — with an even-steeper surcharge on off-street parking — drew similar complaints and state Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn said, "It just won't work."

Officials in Texas said it was too early to tell what the reaction would be to regulations proposed for Dallas, Austin, San Antonio, Houston and El Paso.

But they noted that the Texas Air Control Board said earlier that it did not believe the EPA efforts to cut pollution by cutting traffic would work. The Texas group has urged, instead, that antipollution efforts be concentrated on stationary sources of pollution like factories and refineries.

The proposals vary from city to city within Texas, but all the plans call for more busing and car pools and would companies with 1,000 or more employes to provide busing and car-pool incentives next year.

The most severe regulations were proposed for the California areas — Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, San Diego and the San Joaquin Valley — and Denver, Colo. The federal agency said these cities would have to cut back drastically on the number of vehicles on the road, partly by rationing fuel.

In Los Angeles, officials said the latest EPA proposals were an improvement over earlier plans. "This is clearly a new direction," said Mayor Thomas Bradley. "EPA is working with us and listening to us at the local level."

Officials in Portland, Ore., also said they were pleased that the EPA had accepted their suggestions. "We asked for the right to develop a plan that would meet the standards, but would be tailored to our own circumstances," said Gov. Tom McCall. "Because of our past record of achievement, we won that right."

The plan approved for Portland calls for a vehicle inspection program, traffic flow improvements, better public transportation and a halt to further development of downtown parking.

Bake a memory . . .

Bread is truly "the staff of life," one of the few foods common, in some form, to all people. There is nothing like the fragrant aroma of fresh bread to remind us of home. Until recently, home baking had been on the decline, but, with the new emphasis on creative cooking, and new, easier baking methods, many homemakers are again making their own bread.

One of the many types of bread available to home bakers is yeast bread. The development of some of the newer, shorter methods, such as Rapid Mix« Cool Rise«, and Batter, makes yeast bread easier and more fun to make. Each method has its own distinctive characteristics. The yeast used must be fresh or the bread will not rise properly.

In the Rapid Mix« method, undissolved yeast is mixed with the dry ingredients, eliminating the necessity for dissolving the yeast in liquid, and making it easier to blend the ingredients with less chance of lumps. It rises faster because of the very warm liquid used.

The Cool Rise« method allows the dough to be mixed, kneaded and shaped all at once, then refrigerated for two to twenty-four hours before baking. The rising takes place during refrigeration. Since this method is especially adapted, you should use it only with Cool Rise« recipes.

The Batter method produces a thin mixture which is allowed to rise in the bowl or baking pan, eliminating the kneading. The bread texture will be somewhat coarser than that of kneaded breads.

If you want to bake some memories and need some suggested recipes, send your name and address to me. They're free and I like to hear from you.

Cool Rise« was developed by International Multifoods Corp.
Rapid Mix« was developed by Standard Brands.

Katz Main Speaker At Paris Conference

Dr. Robert Katz

Scientist Honored

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln physics professor, who is internationally regarded as a pathfinder in the development of mathematical models that are speeding the development of medical radiation therapy, was the principal speaker at a conference of scientists held in his honor in Paris, France.

Dr. Robert Katz gave the opening and closing addresses at a round table concerning the interaction of radiation with matter sponsored by the French Atomic Energy Commission and the Council of Europe at the Center for Nuclear Studies of the French Atomic Energy Commission in the suburb of Fonteray aux Roses.

The program was organized because Dr. Katz was to be in Europe, attending another meeting. He had earlier lectured at the Institute of Physics at the University of Florence and had spoken at a meeting of radiation scientists from Western Europe and America at Verbana, Italy.

At this meeting, the fourth Symposium of Microdosimetry, Dr. Katz chaired the closing session and presented three papers concerning research he has conducted with NU physicist, Dr. S.C. Sharma.

Enroute home from Europe, Dr. Katz lectured to physicists concerned with radiation therapy at the world-famous Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York.

Dr. Katz's research centers around mathematical models that have been developed by him and his students to predict the reaction of radiation detectors and biological tissues to various types and doses of radiation.

There is no comparable theory, according to Dr. Katz. "Recent experimental tests have verified predictions from the model, giving us confidence that we can do computer experiments to help therapists evaluate the relative advantages of new radiations in cancer treatments."

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The throat contains several 'lines of defense' against infection.

But all throat tissues can become infected, according to the Nebraska Medical Association. Repeated or severe infections may overwhelm the throat's protective functions.

Tonsils, adenoids, lingual tonsils and lymphoid tissue are all part of the throat area. Adenoids usually become smaller and disappear with age. However, in childhood, adenoids often become enlarged and must be removed so they do not affect the nose and ears.

After about five years of age, tonsils appear to have little function. However, they need not be removed. If the necessity occurs, tonsils can be removed at any age.

Strep throat is a term commonly applied to a very severe sore throat associated with fever and toxicity. Unless a laboratory test for bacteria is made, not even a physician can truly diagnose a strep throat. It is often followed by rheumatic fever.

Opera Could Put Lincoln On Map—Artistically

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln professor Bill Wallis thinks highly of Lincoln and its artistic potential.

He also feels that "barriers need to be broken down between NU and the city" in the area of the fine arts.

On the basis of these beliefs, Wallis has, for the past several months, been seeking support — both monetary and moral — within the city for a project that just might serve to put Lincoln on the map as far as artistic innovation is concerned.

Currently a Fellow with the Centennial Educational Program at UNL, Wallis has received permission from British playwright Ronald Millar to adapt his popular drama, "Abelard and Heloise" for presentation as an opera which would have its world premier in Lincoln.

"'Abelard' is basically an opera in structure," he said. "It's fraught with musical possibilities."

"Barriers need to be broken down between NU and the city" in the area of the fine arts."

STAR PHOTO

WALLIS . . . works to get production on stage.

The idea for the endeavor originated earlier this year after Wallis had attended the University Theatre production of "Abelard."

A short time prior to that, "Napoleon," a nationally-acclaimed opera co-authored by Wallis, had premiered at the University of Nebraska; and its success indicated to Wallis that regional opera had a potentially bright future in cities like Lincoln.

"So I wrote Millar immediately for permission to adapt the play," he stated. "And he said yes on the strength of the reviews of 'Napoleon.'"

Since receiving the go-ahead from Millar, Wallis has been working on the libretto, and he believes that he now has a "very viable" script.

He has also talked to UNL Professor of Music Theory and Composition, Robert Beadell, who wrote the musical score for "Napoleon." Beadell was impressed with the script and agreed to score the opera if Wallis is successful in obtaining financial backing.

But at the moment, that backing seems somewhat elusive.

In August, Wallis submitted a proposal to the City Council asking for sponsorship of the creation and presentation of the opera.

"We knew there was no precedent for city government support of the arts," Wallis stated. "There is no facility for commissioning a work of art in the state without private funding," he added, explaining that groups like the Nebraska Arts Council only provide matching funds.

The proposal, which was subsequently rejected by the Council, called for that body to sponsor the initial commission of the playwright, libretto and composition (an estimated total of $10,000); and to serve as the "immediate source of funds for applications for matching state and federal funds to defray production costs."

"For most people the word 'opera' has a lot of strange connotations. Everybody thinks its so high falutin'."

"We need $10,000 first to get the thing created," he continued. If that sum were obtained, project backers would then seek an additional $26,000 in gifts, donations and matching state and federal funds... The proposed $36,000 budget would be enough to cover all production costs, including the hiring of technical assistants, actors and actresses.

"We wanted the banner of the city under which to operate."

According to Wallis, the $10,000 commission could be "refunded easily" by the income derived from box office receipts during the production.

"We could run two or three weekends and get that. Ultimately, I think it would have cost the City Council nothing."

However, he feels that this crucial fact was not sufficiently clarified in the proposal.

In addition, Wallis added that one thing "we really wanted from the City Council was a statement — 'We endorse this.' We wanted the banner of the city under which to operate.

"I regret that we didn't make this clear."

Had the Council been persuaded to issue such an endorsement, Wallis believes that it would have been easier to get funding from other sources.

In explaining why he wants to create and produce this opera in Lincoln, Wallis said, "I would like to see one major artistic event take place while I'm here which would involve both UNL and the city.

"Barriers need to be broken down between the University and the city" with regard to the fine arts, he continued.

"People is not our problem. Lincoln residents don't realize the human potential that is here."

"There seems to be a kind of stigma against University people who are involved in the arts." But the fact is, "we're citizens of the state. We're not cut off from the rest of the city."

Noting that "most of the talent (necessary for the production) is right here," Wallis emphasized that "Beadell is a Nebraska artist — as much a Nebraska artist as Willa Cather."

He has discussed the project with officials at Howell Theatre, and "they told me they could work within the budget."

However, he added, "we wouldn't be using just UNL talent. We would have a union contract with the orchestra; and I hope that many townspeople — such as members of the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra — would participate.

"People is not our problem. Lincoln residents don't realize the human potential that is here."

He feels that involving the community in the production would create "a feeling of personal investment. You can't expect people to come to something unless they have an investment in it."

"I'd really like to work with the people of Lincoln and Nebraska. I love the city of Lincoln, and I don't see why Nebraska artists can't be supported in a very real way."

Wallis termed it "very fortunate" that Millar — whom he considers "one of the better British playwrights" — would "consider letting Nebraska take this piece and put it on stage."

He noted that, in adapting the play, he has changed it somewhat in an effort to "try to create the feeling of the Medieval world. And I've also strengthened the character of Heloise."

The script has been favorably received by all who have read it, he added, and he has received a good deal of encouragement from those who know and appreciate opera.

For most people, "the word 'opera' has a lot of strange connotations. Everybody thinks it's so high falutin'."

However Wallis believes that it is an art form — one of the most effective means of dramatic expression — that can be enjoyed by all. And the promotion of regional opera is an excellent way to familiarize the public with this time-honored art.

Currently, Wallis is still seeking funding — this time from private sources — for the amount of the initial commission.

"Right now I'm building my life around trying to get the production on stage."

Game Is A Big Racket

DEAR ABBY: My husband is handicapped. He wears heavy braces on both legs and walks with crutches.

Last year this "friend" of his talked him into going with him to ask farmers to donate Christmas trees to distribute to crippled children's homes thruout the state.

They cut truckloads of trees, sold them, and pocketed the money 50-50. This friend does all the talking while my husband just stands there on his crutches. His being there suggests that my husband is in some way associated with crippled children's homes, which he is not.

This "friend" says most people can't say no to a cripple.

They are planning to do it again this year. Abby, we don't need the money. I am ashamed for my husband to get mixed up in such an underhanded deal. He says: "It's just a little game. Don't let it bother you."

What should I do? W.K.

DEAR W.K. Tell your husband his "little game" is a big racket in case he doesn't already realize it. Furthermore, to use one's handicap to play on the sympathy of others for a handout is beneath the dignity of most handicapped people, and your husband ought to be ashamed of himself!

DEAR ABBY: Your column about those rude people who sit in a restaurant, reading while others are waiting for a table was mailed to me — anonymously.

Yes, I read in restaurants while dining alone. What else is there to do while I wait to order? Or wait to be served? Or wait for my check?

I suppose I could ogle the other diners, but that's rude. Or I could watch the waitresses. But that's rude, too. The other alternative is to stare into empty space, which is a waste of time. So I read. But I never tie up a table any longer than is necessary. I think anonymous letters are cowardly, so I'm signing my name.

LIKES TO READ

DEAR LIKES: I agree, anonymous letters ARE cowardly, but there are obviously cowards aplenty because many others wrote to say they had also received that column in the mail, anonymously. Now, all you lone reader-diners will have the last word for dessert. And as long as you don't tie up a table while others are waiting, bon apetite!

AA Alums Plan Game Supper

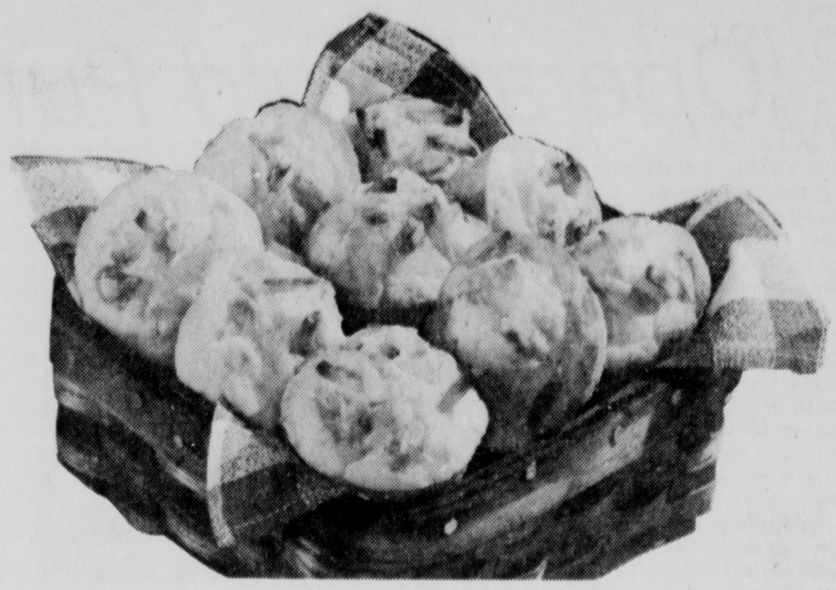

The first post-game gathering of Alumni in Alcoholics Anonymous and the Al-Anon Family Group will be held following the University of Nebraska-Lincoln homecoming game Saturday.

No reservations are required for the informal supper to be held at Hope Auditorium, 2015 So. 16th St.

Hosting the event will be the directors of the Lincoln branch of Houses of Hope of Nebraska, Inc., and Santa Monica's Home for Women in Omaha. Both are 1947 graduates of UNL.

As one Alumni in AA member put it, "The disease of alcoholism cuts across all social and educational classes, but we sometimes feel that alcoholics with more formal education find themselves cut off from the kind of help they need when they continue to seek answers in an academic way.

"They are also more apt to hide their condition because of prestige or better financial circumstance until, tragically, it becomes physically and mentally too late for help to be effective," the member said.

Make It With Cheese

Cheese, both versatile and convenient, has been a part of the food legend since ancient times.

American homemakers today are continuing the tradition, selecting cheese as a staple for many meals. And why not? It provides necessary protein, minerals, vitamins and nutrients.

The versatility of cheese is indisputed. With a little imagination it can add zest to a party, extra zing to breakfasts, spice to sandwiches, soups and desserts and sparkle to a special meal.

Some favorite recipes employing cheese are:

Cheddar Almond Muffins

Topping:

2 T. butter, melted
1 t. Worcestershire sauce
½ t. garlic salt
1/3 c. chopped, blanched slivered almonds

Mufins:

2 c. sifted all-purpose flour
¼ c. sugar
1 T. baking powder
1 t. salt
¾ c. (3 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 egg
1 c. milk
3 T. butter, melted

To make topping: In a bowl blend together butter, Worcestershire sauce and garlic salt. Stir in almonds; reserve.

To make muffins: Into a bowl sift together flour, sugar, baking power and salt. Stir in cheese. In a small bowl beat together egg and milk; stir in remaining butter. Add to dry ingredients and stir just until dry ingredients are moistened, about 25 strokes. Fill buttered muffin cups about 2/3 full. Sprinkle about 1 t. reserved almond mixture over each muffin, pressing almonds into batter slightly. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Yield: 12 muffins.

To make Parmesan Almond Muffins, follow recipe, except substitute ½ c. grated Parmesan cheese for the Cheddar cheese.

Cinnamon-Apple

Omit almond topping. Make muffins following above directions increasing sugar to 1/3 c. then after 20 strokes add ¾ c. finely chopped cooking apples and continue blending for 5 strokes. Fill muffin cups about 2/3 full. Sprinkle each muffin with cinnamon-sugar.

Pineapple

Omit almond topping. Make muffins following above directions but after 20 strokes add ½ c. (8½ oz. can) drained crushed pineapple and continue blending for 5 strokes. Fill muffin cups about 2/3 full.

Hot Cheese Balls

2 T. butter
2½ T. all-purpose flour
1 3 c. milk
¼ c. dry sherry
½ c. sharp Cheddar cheese spread
¼ t. salt
2 3 c. fine soft bread crumbs
Flour
1 egg white, lightly beaten
Cornflake crumbs or fine dry bread crumbs
Cooking oil

In a skillet, melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and sherry; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and is very thick. Remove from heat and stir in cheese spread, salt, and bread crumbs. Turn into shallow pan and chill thoroughly.

Shape chilled mixture into small balls about 1¼ inches in diameter and roll in flour. Dip in egg white, then roll in cornflake crumbs. Allow to dry a few minutes, then dip again in egg and crumbs.

In a skillet, heat cooking oil and fry the cheese balls, a few at a time, 45 to 60 seconds or just until browned. Drain on paper towels and serve warm.

Cheese balls may be prepared ahead and reheated 12 to 15 minutes in a 300-degree oven. Makes 18 balls.

Cabbage Casserole

1 medium-sized head of cabbage (about 1½ lbs.)
1 can (10 oz.) cream of chicken soup (undiluted)
1 jar (5 oz.) processed Cheddar cheese spread
¼ c. bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste
2 T. butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cut cabbage in half, separate leaves and soak in cold water. Slice leaves into strips, removing hard center core. Place in boiling, salted water; parboil for 5 minutes. Allow to stand in hot water for several minutes and drain. Alternate layers of cabbage, soup, and cheese in greased 1½ qt. casserole. Season. Sprinkle with bread crumbs; dot with butter and bake for 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 6-8 servings.

Without Permanent Wave Solutions

Just Comb In

If your hair is hard to wave, or lacks the natural body to hold a set as long as you'd like, you are invited to participate in a trial demonstration of the new protein discovery that curls and waves straight hair . . . without permanent solutions! Easier than ever before, you'll have lovely curls and waves that last and last . . . no matter how damp and windy the weather! It's called PERFORM and one set will convince you this protein lotion is the hair waving discovery charm-conscious women have long been waiting for.

CASUAL, NATURAL-LOOKING WAVES ARE SO EASY

Only Perform gives you this soft, delightful protein that actually soaks into straight hair to give it a soft, casual, natural-looking wave. Very important, you don't have to put up your hair at night, yet the wave stays in. Muss up your hair, sleep on it, let it blow in the wind . . . just comb and back into place fall those soft lovely curls and waves, as natural-looking as if you were blessed with wavy hair all your life.

Ask for Perform at drug and Dept. stores today.

SAFE FOR ALL TYPES

Even hair that is dyed, bleached or damaged takes on a lustrous sheen, glowing with manageable body. Always your wave looks casual and natural-looking. And it's as simple and easy as setting your hair!

WAVES LAST AND LAST

Soft, casual curls and waves stay in perfectly natural-looking, without gummy gels, sticky sprays or neutralizers. Perform adds so much manageable body your hairdo looks fuller and thicker.

Adverse Bidding Helps The Declarer

♣ Q 10 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 NT	Pass	2♥	2♠

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

Point count is of service not only in the bidding but also in the play. Here is a hand where declarer took full advantage of the adverse bidding to make two spades.

West led the king of diamonds, East signaling with the eight, and continued with the ace and another diamond. East took the queen and returned a heart. West won with the ace and led a heart back to South's king.

Declarer had quickly lost four tricks and therefore had to try to hold his club losers to one. The normal method of play would be to draw trumps and lead a low club to the king, finessing the ten on the way back.

This method succeeds, fair and square, if East holds the club jack. But South realized that in this instance it could not succeed — for West was marked by the bidding with the A-J of clubs.

West had bid a notrump and shown up with the A-K of diamonds and ace of hearts — 11 points. The only missing high cards were the A-J of clubs, and West had to have them for his 16 to 18 point notrump.

Rather than blindly follow a plan that was marked to fail, South turned to a different means of play.

After drawing three rounds of trumps, South led the queen of clubs. West had to win with the ace, for to duck would have rendered his position hopeless.

But, having taken the ace, West was left with no safe exit card. He did the best he could when he returned a low club, but declarer let it run to the ten and so made the contract.

Pantyhose may cause your itching torment.

It's true.

Pantyhose may seal heat and moisture in... lock air out. So you itch. Sensitive vaginal and rectal areas need special care.

That's BiCOZENE Creme. (Say it "By-Co-Zeen.")

BiCOZENE helps relieve itching fast. Quiets your urge to scratch... even helps promote healing.

BiCOZENE means special care for sensitive vaginal and rectal membranes.

Ask your druggist about BiCOZENE.

Busy Feminist 'Mans' Paper

(AP) — She's a fulltime student, a merchant, a buyer for a store, a wife and a reporter, editor and publisher. In a word, Dottie Cohen is busy.

The Omaha University pyschology and sociology major entered the newspaper field because she was the "only one left to do it" on the staff of EveryWoman several months ago.

The newspaper, which during most of its four-year history has resembled a newsletter more than a newspaper, is a feminist publication.

The paper is published at six-week intervals and is mailed and sold to approximately 1,000 Omaha-area subscribers, although Ms. Cohen, she prefers the use of Ms. but says she doesn't make an issue of it, says at least one copy goes "out west to Kimball."

She says she is a feminist — "someone who is concerned with the equality of men and women" — but she quickly adds: "I don't see myself as a spokesman for the women's liberation movement."

Why a feminist newspaper? "A lot of people think it fills a need," she answers. The goal of EveryWoman is to give some unity to women's groups, particularly in the Omaha area, she adds.

For example, she believes if women's groups had been organized or had a vehicle to present their views, they might have had the strength to prevent the legislature from overturning ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment earlier this year.

"Until the amendment is ratified, progress for women will continue to be difficult," she says.

The newspaper at that time could have presented the "other side" of the argument, something that wasn't done, she maintains.

The attractive 21-year-old UNO senior is a full partner in an Omaha store with her husband. The store office does double duty as a newsroom where she and other unsalaried workers assemble the newspaper before taking it to an Omaha printer.

Although, Ms. Cohen hopes the paper will grow and find acceptance among women, she does not envision it as a competitor to larger newspapers in the area.

The paper recently began accepting advertising, a move she says was "a big step, although I was against it at first."

Admitting that she has never taken a journalism class and doesn't plan to, Ms. Cohen says she does "plan to keep with" her journalistic pursuits along with her business career and studies.

Homecoming Activities Crowd The Calendar

Delta Upsilon

Delta Upsilon, a social fraternity at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will celebrate its 75th year on the UNL campus during an observance scheduled to take place this weekend.

Coinciding with UNL Homecoming activities, the Diamond Jubilee celebration will take place at the old chapter house, 1701 E St., Friday, Oct. 19. The combination cocktail and dinner party will begin at 6 p.m.

Special guests at the event will be W.F. "Doc" Jones of White Plains, N.Y.; and "Mom" Hazel W. Hardin.

Jones, a 1927 NU graduate, has served as president of the international fraternity and is the Nebraska chapter's trustee; and Ms. Hardin served as DU housemother from 1940 through 1960.

Alpha Xi Pelta

The members of Rho Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta sorority at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will entertain alumnae and friends at an open house following the homecoming game Saturday at the Chapter House, 1619 R St.

Physical Education Dept.

The Department of Physical Education for Women at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will host its annual homecoming coffee for department graduates, parents of women physical education majors and friends from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the UNL Women's Physical Education Building.

Staff members and UNL Chancellor James Zumberge will greet guests at 10 a.m. in the dance studio.

Frontier Co. Gets Outside Aid In Probe

Curtis (UPI) — Frontier County authorities said Tuesday night that outside legal assistance has been requested in the case of the apparent slaying of a rural Culbertson couple.

Sheriff Lannie Roblee said special investigator Bob Sawdon has advised State Attorney General Clarence Meyer and Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas of the "facts of the case" involving Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoyt who disappeared Sept. 23.

Roblee said both Meyer and Douglas "have been advised of the situation involving the Hoyt murders." The sheriff made the comment in a statement released from his office, and it was believed to be the first time that he had bluntly used the word "murders" publicly without qualifying it.

Roblee said Meyer and Douglas have been asked "for advice as to whether charges should be filed and as to where they should be filed."

Douglas has been acting as a legal consultant to Frontier County Attorney Fred Schroeder since parts of two human bodies were found at the Harry Strunk Lake several weeks ago. Schroeder asked for Douglas' aid because of his experience in highly technical criminal matters.

The asking for legal aid from the state attorney general, however, is a new development in the case involving amaze of legal questions.

Sawdon, a former Lincoln policeman, is now a private investigator. He was retained by the Hoyt family initially to work on the case and then was also hired by Frontier County.

Roblee said "no change" has occurred concerning a McCook man and wife who were taken into custody for questioning last Thursday relative to the case. A search was made of their home in McCook Friday, but the results of that search have not been released pending the receipt of a report from the State Patrol laboratory in Lincoln.

The couple was released Friday night after plans fell through to have them taken to what Roblee called a "security detention facility."

Schroeder said, however, that the couple was in "private custody" and under the provisions apparently reached with their attorney, "they were not free to walk the streets."

The couple was released from the Red Willow County jail in McCook after authorities were apparently faced with a writ of habeas corpus from the couple's attorney. In order to hold them officially, authorities would have had to file formal charges, which they weren't then and apparently still aren't able to.

If the charges are filed, the question as to where they should be filed involves three counties since authorities have been unable to determine where the Hoyts were killed and their bodies dissected before being thrown into the lake near Cambridge.

Woman Seeks Damages From Third City Paper

A Grand Island woman has taken a libel case seeking $25,000 in damages against the Grand Island Daily Independent to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

The case comes on appeal from Hall County Court, which dismissed Mrs. Lucille Vodehnal's suit on technical grounds.

Mrs. Vodehnal claims that in 1969 the Independent printed "a totally false" article indicating that she was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 for procuring alcohol for a minor.

However, her attorney said that court records clearly indicate that Hall County Atty. Robert Paulick asked that the case be dismissed, and the case was dropped.

The Independent would have known this, her attorney argued, had the reporter exercised "ordinary diligence."

As a result of the article, Mrs. Vodehnal has been the object of "hate, ridicule and contempt" and has had her "employment capability seriously impaired."

The Hall County Court dismissed the case on the Independent's motion that Mrs. Vodehnal's petition needed clarification of the damage done to her.

Decatur Postal Chief Selected

Omaha (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service Tuesday night announced the appointment of a new postmaster at Decatur.

The appointment of Mrs. Helen O. Newton as postmaster was announced by Charley Dickey, district manager of the Postal Service's Omaha district office.

Mrs. Newton, 48, a former rural school teacher, entered the Postal Service as a clerk in Decatur on March 30, 1970.

WHAT IS MEANT BY FITTING?

Why is proper "fitting" of a hearing aid important? First, no two hearing losses are alike — there are an infinite variety of degrees and types of hearing loss. Second, the hearing aid is no longer merely a sound amplifier: it has become a sophisticated electronic device. So "fitting" a hearing aid is a highly developed art that involves determining precisely the nature and extent of the person's hearing loss, then selecting and adjusting the hearing aid that will give him the best possible help for that loss.

More next week.

Bank Plans Hiram Scott Dorm Sale

Omaha (AP) — A banker said Tuesday a sheriff's sale will be held this year for empty dormitory buildings on the Hiram Scott College campus near Scottsbluff.

Howard Vest of the National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln told the Omaha World-Herald the bank has decided to dispose of the heavily indebted buildings at the defunct college.

"We plan extensive nationwide advertising of the sale," Vest said.

He told the World-Herald the bank has acted as trustee for the dormitory buildings with a total of 600 rooms since the college went bankrupt in 1971. The dormitories were built with a $4.3 million revenue bond issue.

Vest said the bonds last paid annual 6% interest in March of 1971 and "since then they have been totally flat."

As trustee for the buildings, Vest said the bank uses college reserve finds to pay caretaker and maintenance costs amounting to about $60,000 per year.

Paper Shortage To Go On—Institute

New York (AP) — Eight new mills and 22 additional machines will increase the nation's paper making capacity 2.4% annually through 1976, compared with the 3.8% average annual growth during the past 18 years, the American Paper Institute reported. Generally increased tightness in the paper supply is expected to continue, the API said.

Firms Bleeding Rail Assets

By STEPHEN M. AUG
(c) Washington Star-News

Washington — A confidential study concludes that some of the nation's largest transportation-based corporations are stripping assets from their transportation subsidiaires — a practice widely believed to have contributed to the bankruptcy of the huge Penn Central Transportaion Co.

The study, made by the staff of the Interstate Commerce Commission, singles out, among others, the vast and profitable Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroads and Greyhound Corp., as among the companies engaging in "questionable practices."

In essence, the commission says these firms have been bleeding the assets out of their transportation subsidiaries and investing them in nontransportation businesses in which they believe they can make more money.

Eventually, the report implies, the transportation parts of the corporations — the railroads, bus or truck lines — could be left as mere shells, unable to muster the financial resources necessary to operate.

The commission sent the report — a copy of which was obtained by the Washington Star-News — to the chairmen of the Commerce Committees of the Senate and House with a plea for legislation which would give the commission power to prevent improper siphoning of assets.

The report contends that the two big railroads — Southern Pacific and Union Pacific — give up vast tracts of Western land holdings (many of them government land grants from the 19th century) to their parent corporations, while receiving no compensation.

Some of the findings include:

—Southern Pacific Transportation Co. transferred subsidiaries valued at their $6 million original price — but actually close to $120 million in market value — to its parent Southern Pacific Co. It transferred 1.9 million acres of land grant land in California, Nevada and Utah to its corporate parent as well. This land has at a book value of about $6 million, but its actual market value is probably much greater.

—Union Pacific Railroad gave to its parent Union Pacific Corp., "at no cost to the" parent, "thousands of acres of land grants." The railroad also gave $175 million in cash to another corporate affiliate so its parent could buy an oil company — Champlin Petroleum — and provide it with operating funds. It also gave Champlin mineral rights to 6.8 million acres, and because of other intracompany bookkeeping transactions lost potential royalty payments.

—Greyhound Corp., which owns Greyhound Lines Inc., used its fleet of buses as collaterial for a $75 million loan to acquire Armour & Co. It also requires its bus line subsidiaries to pay dividends to the parent whether cash is available or not — and charges interest on unpaid dividends — and requires its bus lines to pay out a higher percentage of earnings in dividends to the parent than other subsidiaries must pay.

"In recent years, over 32% of the carrier's assets have been passed to the holding company, depleting its working capital," the report says.

William P. Raines, corporate public relations vice president at Union Pacific Corp., said there was nothing wrong with the transactions.

"Any notion that we are neglecting or turning our backs on the railroad is just plain not so," he said.

In some cases, transportation-based conglomerates have been very successful. One of them, Northwest Industries, became so successful that it disposed of its railroad — the Chicago & North Western — by selling the line to an employe-owned corporation.

The report says this trend toward ownership of transportation companies by nontransportation holding companies "might ultimately result in a weakened common carrier system incapable of responding to the needs of the public."

Penn Central Given Waiver On Track Safety Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Railroad Administration told the Penn Central Tuesday it would not have to meet federal track safety standards for freight operations but refused a request by the rail giant to exempt passenger operations also.

The federal agency ordered Penn Central within 30 days to upgrade all mainline track and all track over which passenger trains are operated. It also said the railroad must file within 30 days "a plan for the most rapid possible restoration of all other tracks . . ."

Penn Central had claimed that failure of the FRA to exempt it from the safety standards could have put it out of business and could have created power and food shortages in areas of the Northeast.

The standards — which set maximum speeds for trains depending on the condition of the railroad track — went into effect midnight Monday.

Maynard Jackson AP

Atlanta Elects Jackson

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Black challenger Maynard Jackson won a bitterly contested mayoral runoff election against incumbent Sam Massell Tuesday to become the first black mayor of a major southern city in modern times.

Jackson, elected vice mayor four years ago, had been the favorite since he swamped 10 other candidates in the general election Oct. 2 but fell just short of outright election.

Unofficial returns from all of the city's 193 precincts gave Jackson 73,603 votes and Massell 49,300. Some 2,600 absentee ballots remained to be tabulated.

In the race for president of the city council, white moderate Wyche Fowler easily defeated black civil rights activist Hosea Williams 75,799 to 43,693.

Not only will the city's top leadership be biracial, it also will be one of the youngest in history. Jackson is 35 and Fowler is 33.

Fowler will preside over a predominantly black city council. Blacks won 13 of the 18 seats.

$352.5 Million IBM Judgment Is Withdrawn

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge A. Sherman Christensen Tuesday withdrew his $352.5 million antitrust judgment against International Business Machines Corp.

Christensen said he plans to set a lower figure later. He said the record of the lengthy trial earlier this year provided insufficient information on which to set a new damage total to be awarded the Telex Corp., which had charged IBM with monopolistic practices.

IBM attorneys Tuesday argued that claims by Telex for damages in the trial were erroneous and should not be allowed.

IBM said that industrial espionage by Telex had improved Telex's financial position and damaged IBM's.

An attorney for IBM told Judge Christensen that while he had awarded IBM the profits Telex had made from its espionage acts, he had charged IBM, in damages, the amount Telex had projected to make during the next six years.

Like Humpty Dumpty

It was generally agreed by most of the fellows pounding typewriter keys in the Missouri press box after the Tigers' 13-12 win over Nebraska Saturday that when the polls were released Monday the Huskers would remain ahead of Missouri.

After all, going into the game the Huskers were ranked No. 2 by both the coaches and the writers while United Press International (coaches) had Missouri 14th and The Associated Press (writers) had the Tigers 12th.

And the margin of victory was only a missed two-point conversion in a game dominated by the loser.

But when the polls showed the Huskers dropping all the way to 11th, it was a fall that can be matched only by the tumble taken by the Roman Empire or perhaps that spill that Humpty Dumpty took.

But the drop does clearly indicate one or two major flaws in the polling system. For one thing, not more than one of those writers, who saw the Nebraska-Missouri game and agreed that the Huskers would remain ahead of Missouri in the polls, is on the 56-man voting board.

And the majority of those 56 are in areas such as the West Coast, East Coast, South and Big Ten where papers carry little more than scores on Big Eight games.

Timing Important Factor

Another important factor in the polls is timing — it matters not so much that you win or lose or play a close game, but when you do it.

The weekend that Southern Cal was tied by Oklahoma, 7-7, only a couple of other teams in the top ten won impressively, presumably explaining why the Trojans didn't drop farther than from first to fourth.

For instance, that same weekend the Huskers blew a golden opportunity to become No. 1 when they barely edged Wisconsin, 20-16.

No. 4 Michigan defeated Navy by only 14-0, No. 6 Penn State defeated Iowa by only 27-8, No. 7 Notre Dame topped Purdue by only 20-7 and No. 10 LSU defeated Rice only 24-9.

Voters could hardly justify dropping the Trojans below those teams since the tie, after all, was against an Oklahoma team that was ranked eighth.

On the other hand, the Nebraska loss, even if only by one point, came on a weekend when nearly every other top ten team won big, presumably giving the voters justification for moving everyone else up and the Huskers down.

What A Difference Point Makes

Alabama defeated Florida 35-14, Southern Cal topped Washington State 46-35, Michigan bombed Michigan State 31-0, Oklahoma thrashed Texas 52-13, Penn State drubbed Army 54-3, Tennessee topped Georgia Tech 20-14, Notre Dame blanked Rice 28-0 and LSU downed Auburn 20-6.

So down goes Nebrska, taking the biggest fall of anyone in the polls this season and perhaps in many a season.

Further proof that one or two points makes a big difference with little regard to why it was that close is illustrated by what happened to Tennessee two weeks ago against Kansas.

A two-point conversion try by Kansas failed, leaving Tennessee with a 28-27 victory and the Vols moved up from ninth to eighth in both polls because of it.

Had Nebraska been successful on the two-point try, it's likely the Huskers would still be No. 2 or at worst fifth.

Yet the success or failure of the extra point try had nothing to do with the relative strengths of the two teams through 60 minutes of football. But that's football.

A'S WIN IN 11 INNINGS

. . . Campaneris' Single Sinks Mets, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland Manager Dick William was running out of bodies Tuesday night, but he still had Bert Campaneris left. That was just about all he needed for the A's to beat the New York Mets 3-2 in Game 3 of the 1973 World Series.

Campaneris, whose stolen base helped the A's tie the score in the eighth inning, delivered the deciding hit in the 11th, scoring Ted Kubiak with Oakland's winning run.

"I felt at that moment I was going to get a hit," said Campaneris, who had three singles in the game.

It was a good thing for the A's he got the hit because Williams was beginning to lose the battle of bodies.

Operating with a 23-man roster after owner Charles O. Finley sent second-game goat Mike Andrews home, Williams used 18 of his players.

"We proved what we can do despite the front office," said Sal Bando, captain of the A's.

The A's were trailing 2-1 until the eighth when Campaneris opened with a single and stole second on Mets' starter Tom Seaver.

"I was going on my own," the speedy A's shortstop said. "I faked it on the first pitch just to see Seaver's move. I can steal on Seaver. He's very slow going to the plate. I got a good jump and had it all the way."

Joe Rudi's single brought him home and sent the game into overtime, giving Campy a chance to be the hero three innings later when his single delivered Kubiak.

The victory gave the A's a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Series, with Game 4 scheduled for 8:30 p.m., EDT, Wednesday in New York.

Kubiak had walked on a 3-1 pitch, then dashed to second on Met catcher Jerry Grote's passed ball as Angel Mangual struck out.

Then Campaneris, whose stolen base had helped the A's tie the score 2-2 in the eighth inning against Met starter Tom Seaver, singled to center, scoring Kubiak. The speedy Oakland shortstop tried to reach second on the throw to the plate but was thrown out when the Mets cut off the throw home.

That gave the A's the lead, and reliever Paul Lindblad needed just three outs to nail down the victory.

But he couldn't do it. Wayne Garrett, who had homered in the first inning, delivered a checked-swing single to center leading off the Mets' last chance. That brought Rollie Fingers out of the Oakland bullpen.

The ace reliever, 18th player used in the game by Oakland, retired Felix Millan on a sacarifice and then finished the Mets off by getting Rusty Staub on a fly ball and Cleon Jones on a grounder to shortstop Campaeris.

The A's, playing with only 23 men after owner Charles O. Finley ordered utility infielder Mike Andrews home following Sunday's game, had five players left at the end. Four of them were pitchers, including Ken Holtzman, scheduled starter for Game 4.

Garrett was the 14th player left on base by the Mets.

The A's rushed from their dugout to congratulate Fingers, who was credited with a save. And the capacity crowd of 54,817 orderly filed out of Shea Stadium.

The game lasted 3 hours and 15 minutes on a bone-chilling night, with gusty winds blowing throughout. It started on a promising note for the Mets, with two first-inning runs and the ace of their staff, Seaver, pitching.

But it ended dismally in defeat for New York after the A's came from behind to tie the score with runs in the sixth and eighth innings against Seaver. Harry Parker, the Mets' fourth pitcher of the game, was the loser and Lindblad, who relieved in the ninth, was the winner.

Both teams had chances to break the tie in the ninth inning.

In the top half, leadoff batter Vic Davalillo reached first when his grounder bounced off second baseman Millan's glove for an error. Pat Bourque tried to sacrifice but beat out his bunt for a single.

That brought on Tug McGraw, who had pitched six innings in relief on Sunday. Ted Kubiak tried to bunt, but McGraw grabbed the ball and forced Davalillo at third. Then pinch-hitter Angel Mangual took a third strike and Campaneris flied to center, ending the threat.

With two out in the bottom of the ninth, Rusty Staub doubled for the Mets. Jones was walked intentionally and John Milner flied deep to right, sending the game into extra innings.

The A's tied the score in the eighth on the speed of Campaneris. The fleet shortstop opened with a single to left and stole second. Then Joe Rudi singled past Milner, scoring the fleet Oakland shortstop.

After a sacrifice moved Rudi to second, Seaver pitched out of the jam, getting Reggie Jackson on a fly ball and striking out Gene Tenace. The strikeout was the 12th of the game for Seaver, who left for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the eighth.

It marked only the second time in Series' history that two clubs have played consecutive extra inning games. The only other time it happened was Oct. 6 and Oct. 7, 1933 when Washington and the New York Giants did it.

About 1,000 special guards, policemen and ushers were in the stadium for the first Series game in New York because of the unruliness of the Shea crowds in the National League playoff last week.

Tuesday night's crowd was well behaved.

Husker Cagers 'Enthusiastic'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

More team enthusiasm . . . more cohesiveness . . . greater unity.

Those are the capsule descriptions NU's two seniors and two returning juniors use to analyze this year's Nebraska basketball team — the 11th in the Joe Cipriano coaching era at Nebraska.

With seven freshmen and three sophomores, the Huskers may be the youngest team in the Big Eight. But the four Husker "edler statesmen" all agree that this year's team will eclipse last year's 9-17 overall record.

"You can tell just in the running program that everybody's attitude is a lot better than in the last two years," said junior Steve Erwin, from Laurel. "Everybody's been working hard."

"We (upperclassmen) have more competition this year and that makes us work harder and helps our team a lot," he said at Tuesday's NU press-photo day at the NU Coliseum.

Senior forward Brendy Lee said this year's squad wants to erase the stigma of last year's subpar record.

"There's more enthusiasm, more team unity and we've had more depth than ever before," the Brush, Colo., native noted. "There's a lot more interest this year, but you always have that when you have so many younger players. We want to do a lot better than last year."

Senior Tom Novak and junior Kent Reckewey both stressed the importance of winning the early nonconference tests in December. The Huskers make eight Coliseum appearances before the Big Eight Tournament in late December in Kansas City.

"It's hard to say how we'll do, but if we get off to a good start in December, then we'll have a good team," said Novak. "If we get our confidence up at the beginning then we'll have a good season.

"The freshmen we have are pretty talented and we seem to be pretty cohesive this year," he said. "We're a lot closer as a team this year than last year."

Reckewey emphasized the lack of certain factions such as seniors or upperclassmen as a positive aspect of this year's team.

"Sometimes, when you have certain groups together it can bring trouble," he said. "But we don't have that this year and we seem to have more enthusiasm and we're more aggressive this season.

"I think it all depends on how we do at the beginning," he said. "Sometimes with such a young team you can have trouble if you lose at the start and can't get back. But everybody's together and we do have a lot of talented players."

The only other upperclassman on the NU roster is Fred Coker, a 6-5 junior who is a transfer from El Camino Junior College in California.

Besides the four named above, the returning lettermen include sophomore guards Rickey Marsh and Jerry Fort, last year's scoring leader with a 14.5 per-game mark.

NU's initial game will be a Nov. 20 date against the Yuogoslavia National Team in the Coliseum. The Yugosalvian team is touring the United States and will face all Big Eight squads.

The red-white game is set for Nov. 27 with the Huskers' first regular-season game on Dec. 1 against Wyoming, a 65-59 victor last season at Laramie.

Better Kicking Sought

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne kept himself after practice Tuesday — to shag footballs for a couple of freshmen.

The reason was that Missouri last Saturday started drives on four Husker kickoffs at midfield and Osborne is trying to keep that from happening again.

"We looked at a couple of freshmen tonight," he explained after the post-practice session. "But I think we'll go back to trying to work with Mike Coyle again Wednesday."

The freshmen were Dan Miller and King Block.

"They kicked it higher than Coyle does, but they didn't get it much past the 15-yard line," Osborne explained. "We're going to try to work with Coyle to get him kicking it higher."

The Husker coach explained he wasn't so interested in finding a kicker to kick the ball into the end zone as he was to find someone, who could get the ball high enough to permit the coverage to get downfield.

"We'd like to have the ball hang up there 3.7 to four seconds," he pointed out. "Coyle hung it better the week before than he did against Missouri.

"Against Missouri about half of our people weren't able to get in on the coverage. If you can hang the ball up in the air, your people have a chance to get downfield and knock some people down and then the opponents' wedge is destroyed."

Osborne began looking Tuesday for a backup performer at split end behind Dave Shamblin, who has moved up to No. 1 with the shoulder dislocation suffered by Frosty Anderson.

"We're looking at Jeff Hill, Tim Lackovic and Bobbie Thomas," Osborne said. "We'll probably go with Hill because of his experience, but Thomas looks good."

Thomas is a freshman wingback, but Osborne says, "He's probably a better wide receiver than a wingback."

NU Favored By 20

Knights Gals Trim Links, 56-27

Triple-winner Sue Maude led the Lincoln Southeast girls swimming team to a dual victory over Lincoln High, 56-27, Tuesday.

Miss Maude captured firsts in the 100 and 200-yard freestyle — both in pool and varsity record-shattering time — and anchored the winning 200-yard freestyle team for the Knights at Southeast's pool.

Knights Gals Win

Lincoln Southeast defeated Lincoln High, 15-4 and 16-14, in girls volleyball action, Tuesday.

A's 11-5 Favorites To Capture Series

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The New York Mets, with Jon Matlack pitching, are 11-10 favorites to beat the Oakland A's and Ken Holtzman Wednesday night in the fourth game of the World Series, oddsmaker Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder said Tuesday night.

Oakland, which holds a 2-1 series advantage, is an 11-5 favorite to beat the Mets for the championship, however, Snyder said.

Bobick Gets KO In Second

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Duane Bobick knocked out Olvin Veazey of Bridgeport, Conn. at 1:39 of the second round in a scheduled eight-round heavyweight fight Tuesday night.

Bobick, 6-feet-3 and 214 pounds, knocked Veasey to one knee with a short right uppercut. Veaszey, 6-foot-3 a 217 pounds, couldn't make it to his feet by the end of the count.

Bobick, who suffered a disappointing loss in the 1972 Munich Olympics, has scored knockouts in 12 consecutive professional fights.

Referee Billy Taylor said after the match, "If you don't think Veazey was hurt you're mistaken. That solar plexis blow took the wind out of him."

"I feel I'm one year away, at least, from a title shot," Bobick said after his victory.

Veazey told reporters after the bout, "I heard the count but couldn't get up."

Sacred Heart Extends Streak

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

When Nemaha Valley returned a kickoff 70 yards for a touchdown in a 28-8 loss to Falls City Sacred Heart last week, Sacred Heart coach Bill Jenkins confesses he was somewhat relieved.

"Now we won't be thinking about whether someone's going to score on us. We can concentrate on a more important kind of pressure — winning," says Jenkins, whose team is working on a 24-game unbeaten streak in its bid to defend the Class D state championship.

The No. 1-ranked Irish defense had not given up a touchdown in its previous 13 games. And, technically, it still hasn't if one considers some minor reshuffling of personnel on Sacred Heart's kickoff unit.

Only one player on Sacred Heart's varsity roster has experienced a loss at the school. He's Steve Kottich, who played as a freshman.

"Some of our seniors are convinced that they're going to graduate from high school without losing," says Jenkins, whose previous two teams compiled 8-0-2 and 10-0 records. "They like the pressure of an unbeaten streak. It's something to work for."

Sacred Heart's title chances may have diminished in the hard-hitting Nemaha Valley game when three-year quarterback starter Joe Fleskoski injured his knee in the second quarter.

His doctor said Monday that Fleskoski will be sidelined at least one week and perhaps two weeks. But he is expected to return to action by Nov. 2 when Sacred Heart and second-ranked Nebraska City Lourdes square off in a showdown.

Although Fleskoski's status creates concern in the Irish camp, the outlook has brightened with the healthy return of Kottich.

The 6-2, 225-pound senior middle linebacker, who had spent the previous week in a Whirlpool instead of on the practice field resting an injured knee, intercepted two passes and was credited with a game-leading 17 tackles against Nemaha Valley.

Seniors Mark May at linebacker and Vince Metzner at end have carried Sacred Heart to similar defensive peaks.

Offensively, the Irish have capitalized on the explosiveness of 5-9, 160-pound senior I-back Tim Hoy, who has accumulated more than 800 yards rushing in four games.

"He's been simply unbelievable," enthuses Jenkins. "He's averaging almost 20 yards per carry. I don't know how that can possibly last."

Wilson Sparks East Past LNE, 113-57

Sophomore Sally Wilson's record-shattering performance paced Lincoln East to 113-57 win over Lincoln Northeast, Tuesday, at East Pool.

Miss Wilson's records came in the 100 and 200-yard freestyle events and the 200-yard freestyle relay.

Nebraska Prep Ratings

By Randy York

Class D

1 — Falls City SH (4-0)	6 — Gurley (5-0-1)
2 — Nebraska City Lourdes (4-0)	7 — Polk (4-1)
3 — Ansley (5-1)	8 — Harrisburg (4-1-1)
4 — Lyman (6-0)	9 — Hildreth (4-1)
5 — Wolbach (6-0)	10 — Beemer (4-1)

Comment — Ansley is promoted to third after impressive 22-6 win over Class C Sargent. Clay Center and Elwood lost decisive verdicts to Class C teams and drop from top 10. They are replaced by Harrisburg, loser only to No. 4 Lyman (14-12), and Beemer, loser only to 5-1 Class C Bancroft (31-14). Hildreth lost to Kearney Catholic, another 5-1 Class C club, and receives 6-place ratings demotion.

Eight-Man

1 — Hampton (6-0)	6 — Bruning (5-0)
2 — Adams (6-0)	7 — Wheatland (5-0)
3 — Farnam (5-0)	8 — Dawson-Verdon (5-0)
4 — Paxton (6-0)	9 — McCool Junction (6-0)
5 — Cedar Bluffs (6-0)	10 — Bartlett (4-0)

Comment — Ewing, last week's No. 5 club, lost a 29-0 decision to Orchard in 11-man competition and drops from ratings. Sandhills-Gateway Conference foe Bartlett replaces Ewing in top 10. Top games Friday are No. 1 Hampton at No. 9 McCool Junction and No. 8 Dawson-Verdon at No. 2 Adams.

Jayhawks Near Full Strength

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Coach Don Farmbrough said Tuesday that Kansas should be at nearly full strength for Saturday's Big Eight Conference football meeting with Nebraska.

Don Goode and Sid Sutton, two senior defensive lineman, were both reported running at full speed after minor injuries. Only tight end Ken Saathoff, with bruised ribs, was believed doubtful for the trip to Lincoln.

Fambrough said he hopes momentum will play a part in the game against Nebraska.

"I'd sure hate to be facing them with a 1-4 record," he said after Tuesday's workout. "We've got more confidence than we've had at KU in three years."

Kings Acquire Veteran Guard

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City-Omaha Kings signed Howard Komives Tuesday and put Mike Ratliff on waivers to make room for the veteran guard on their National Basketball Association roster.

Komives was released recently after one season with Buffalo. He played eight previous years with Deroit and the New York Knicks. The 6-foot-1 guard played college basketball at Bowling Green of Ohio.

A's Play Better When Fighting

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Every time we have an incident like this we win."

So spoke Reggie Jackson, the self-appointed spokesman of the 1972 World Champion Oakland A's in summing up both the now celebrated Mike Andrews incident and his team's 3-2 victory over the New York Mets in the third game of this year's series at wind-chilled Shea Stadium Tuesday night.

"We seem to pull harder together after something like this," Jackson explained. "We all get tight."

Before the game, which was completed around midnight, the talk centered around Andrews, the journeyman second baseman who was either pushed or shoved onto the disabled list by A's owner Charles O. Finley after making two crucial errors in Sunday's marathon game won by the Mets. It was just another in a long line of "flareups" in the A's unhappy house, but still they are champions and now hold a 2-1 edge in defense of their title.

Someone asked Jackson if Andrews' return to the club on Wednesday was an act of repentance by Finley.

"No way," the muscled right-fielder replied. "Finley does things like this so he can be a hero. That's the way it is. What do I care what Finley thinks? Where's he gonna send me, Phoenix?"

While Jackson chose to talk about the underlying factors behind the A's success, manager Dick Williams, who used everyone on his bench except Billy Conigliaro, singled out Campy Campaneris, the man who finally ended it in the 11th with a run scoring single into centerfield, for special attention.

"Campy may rank behind Jackson and Bando in game winning hits," said Williams, "but time and again he's won games like this for us—either by getting that kind of hit or by stealing his way into scoring position so one of the other guys can drive him in."

Such was the case in the eighth, when the A's tied the game on Met starter Tom Seaver. Campaneris singled and stole second in an eyelash close play and Joe Rudi promptly singled him home to even matters at 2-2.

"I hit the outside of the bag with my right foot," said Campy of the steal of which TV viewers got at least four different views.

"And in the 11th, my hit off (Met loser Harry) Parker camé on a high fastball. All I was thinking about then was to hit the ball anywhere —just so it went for a hit."

It did and Ted Kubiak who had walked and reached second on Jerry Grote's passed ball, came home with the winning run.

"Campy always has the green light to steal," said Williams when asked whether he was wary about the close play in the eighth. "We have to utilize his speed even more now that Billy North's out."

Williams said that he'd have used his entire 23 men if it meant winning the game.

"The only reason I didn't use Conigliaro is because I was saving him to bat for (winning pitcher Paul) Lindblad if necessary. But if I used 22 players, you can bet I'd have used 23 too."

Tomorrow, he'll have a 24th—Mike Andrews.

Campaneris Fulfills Finley's Confidence

NEW YORK (AP) — Last October at the World Series in Cincinnati, Oakland A's owner Charley Finley had a dinner and sat Bert Campaneris right next to him at the head table.

Someone asked Finley why he didn't have his wife next to him.

The controversial Finley snapped, "It isn't easy to find a good shortstop. You can find a good wife."

Campaneris fulfilled Finley's confidence Tuesday night when he ripped three hits, stole a base that put him in position to score the tying run in the eighth inning, and drove in the winning run in the 11th.

The 5-foot-10 Cuban said he was ready for the two-ball, two-strike pitch in the 11th.

"I feel at that moment that I'm going to get a hit," he said in his halting English.

Campaneris' single scored Ted Kubiak, who had walked and advanced to second on a passed ball. It gave the American League champion A's a 3-2 victory and a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven game World Series over the New York Mets.

Campaneris, who came to the major leagues from Pueblo Nuevo Matanzas, Cuba in 1964, sprayed his three hits to different fields, the first to right, then left and finally to center.

"I always hit where they pitch," he said, trying desperately to find the words to answer the many questions tossed at him in the A's dressing room.

Campaneris was asked about his steal of second in the eighth, when it appeared he was a sure out on a strong throw from Mets' catcher Jerry Grote.

"I see he (second baseman Felix Millan) has the ball, so I slide to the outside of the bag and hit it with my right foot. I know I was safe," Campaneris said.

Outfielder Joe Rudi singled, scoring Campaneris and tying the game 2-2. Campy said he ran on his own. He noticed that Seaver wasn't paying much attention.

"He (Seaver) has a very slow motion to the plate," said Campaneris. "I watch him and know I can go on him. I get a good jump. Anytime I get a good jump, I get the base."

Campaneris, like so many of the A's, is a quick-tempered young man. His 155 pounds is no handicap when it comes to throwing his weight around. Last fall he even threw a bat.

Campaneris was hit in the ankle in the 1972 American League playoffs by a pitch from Detroit's Lerrin Lagrow. The A's shortstop retaliated by throwing his bat at Lagrow, and was suspended from the final three games of the playoffs by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He was allowed to play in the World Series and helped Oakland upset favored Cincinnati.

After 10 major-league seasons, the 31-year-old Campaneris is still running like a scared kid. He's done so much for the A's that Mrs. Charles Finley is ready to admit that good shortstops have to be coddled more than good wives.

Parker Takes Entire Blame

NEW YORK (AP) — Half the New York Mets' battery wasn't talking. The other half was taking the blame.

I'm the one who walked the guy and I'm the one who gave up the base hit," said Harry Parker, who gave up Bert Campaneris' two-out single in the top of the 11th inning, giving the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the Mets Tuesday night and a 2-1 advantage in their best-of-seven game World Series.

Catcher Jerry Grote was the unheard from second party, whose passed ball allowed Ted Kubiak to advance into scoring position in that decisive inning.

After facing the inevitable "what happened?" question in the quiet Mets locker room, Grote, with no hint of emotion on his face, walked away.

But Parker, who entered the game in the A's 11th, narrowed down grote's possible answers.

"I didn't cross him up," said Parker. "Actually I don't really know what happened on the pitch. I lost the ball on my follow through.

"At first I thought it might be a foul tip when I saw the umpire's hand go up. But then I saw Jerry chasing the ball."

The umpire's hand signal was to indicate that Angel Mangual had struck out for the second out of the inning. Mangual couldn't take first because Kubiak was already there. But not for long. Kubiak moved to second on the play, bringing up Campaneris.

Campaneris stroked a single to center, and the A's had their winning run.

"It was a fastball inside," said Parker. "I thought it was a tough pitch. I got it where I wanted. I jammed him, but he still got it over the infield.

"If you do your job, you're up and if you don't, you're down," added Parker in a soft, choked voice.

Yogi Berra, a former catcher, felt compassion for Grote.

"The ball just took off," said the Mets manager. "That doesn't happen too much."

Jon Matlack will pitch in Wednesday night's game, which, Berra hopes, will even the Series at two wins apiece. And, if need be, Tug McGraw again will be in the bullpen.

New York's bullpen ace now has pitched in all three games and his total of 10 innings is more than any other pitcher in the series.

"I felt better than I thought I would," said the normally bubbly McGraw, who was subdued after the loss. "I can go tomorrow.

"I have all winter to rest."

Big Eight Award To Mizzou's Butler

Kansas City (AP) — Heries Butler of Missouri came a long way in his college football career last Saturday.

He didn't start the game but before it was over, Butler had played a major role at middle guard in Missouri's 13-12 upset of Nebraska.

Butler's biggest play came in the third quarter when he broke through, with the score 6-6, to block Rich Sanger's 18-yard field goal attempt.

Earlier, he recovered Nebraska quarterback Dave Humm's fumble that eventually led to a field goal that tied the game.

Butler's performance was so outstanding that he was selected unanimously Big Eight Conference defensive player of the week Tuesday.

The other defensive players nominated were Durwood Keeton of Oklahoma, Charles Kilgore of Kansas State, Dean Zook of Kansas, Bob Nelson of Nebraska, Lawrence Hunt of Iowa State and Rick Bland of Colorado.

Salvage Set For Catfish

North Platte — Fisheries and resource services personnel of the Game and Parks Commission have begun their annual catfish salvage operations from the irrigation canals in the southwest part of the state.

The catfish, trapped in siphons that span canyons and draws, are removed and transported to locations throughout the state for restocking. The fish are trapped in the siphons when the water is shut off to the canals after the irrigation seasons. If not removed, the fish will die.

Salvage operations were recently completed on the Culbertson Canal in northern Hitchcock County. Over 24,000 channel catfish, averaging 4 inches long, were removed from the canal that is supplied with water from the Frenchman River.

Since 1964, 178,000 channel and 3,700 flathead catfish have been salvaged and stocked around the state. According to Monte Madsen, District IV fisheries supervisor, "The fish are a valuable resource because they are large enough to be stocked in lakes with existing predator populations."

Prep Honor To Washington

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

To some, watching a high school football game end in a scoreless tie is akin to the excitement of an Audie Murphy or Randolph Scott movie on the late show.

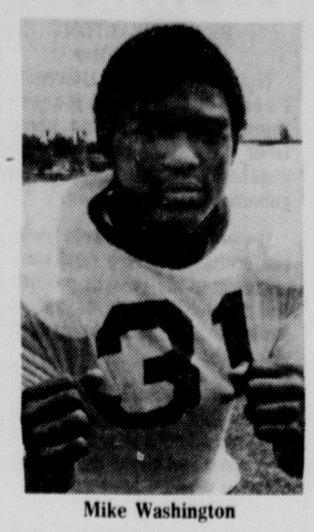

But to others, who enjoy hard hitting tackling just as much, if not more than an overactive scoreboard, a scoreless tie doesn't have to be boring.

It can be a demonstration of superlative defense such as Lincoln High linebacker Mike Washington gave in the Links' 0-0 tie with Lincoln Northeast last weekend.

Washington's effort — which included eight unassisted tackles, four assists, three behind the line of scrimmage for losses totaling eight yards, a pass interception and a fumble recovery — earns the muscular Lincoln High junior the Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award.

"He had a super game. I'm sure Northeast would agree with that," Lincoln High coach Jerry Ball says of his 5-11, 200-pound pupil. "I wouldn't trade either one of our linebackers (Washington and senior Jim Marker) for anyone.

"Mike has been outstanding since our first game against Pius," acknowledges Ball. "He's improving every week, especially at reading and picking up keys. He reacts well against the pass and the run.

"It was pretty evident the first half that Northeast was running away from him," points out Ball. "So Marv Mueller, our linebacker coach, made some changes. Northeast started running more at him, but I'm sure it wasn't by choice. When he recovered a fumble, he just flattened one kid.

"He's a pretty compact package," adds Ball. "His tackles are pretty physical. He does a good job of knocking down passes, too."

Ball relates that Washington, who has been credited with 48 tackles in five games, is a close friend to 1973 prep Athlete of the Year Mike Fultz.

"He thinks a lot of Mike," notes Ball. "He's had a big influence on him." And Washington "is having a big influence on this year's team and the way it's improving."

Others who will receive Player of the Week cards include:

Myron Powell, Grand Island — Explosive 151-pound senior halfback broke off tackle for 22-yard touchdown and finished as game's leading rusher with 92 yards on 13 carries in Islanders' 6-0 Trans-Nebraska Conference win over Lincoln Southeast.

Mark Janky, Central City — His 21-yard field goal with 1:50 remaining gave Bison a 25-22 Central 10 upset win over previously unbeaten Ord. The 150-pound junior also kicked a 32-yard field goal in the second quarter and intercepted two Ord passes.

Gary Trautman, Sutton — A 175-pound junior, he rushed for 124 yards on 21 carries and kicked a 32-yard field goal with four minutes remaining to lift current No. 1 Class C club to 16-14 upset win over previous No. 1 Sandy Creek, breaking a 15-game winning streak.

Steve Kottich, Falls City Sacred Heart — The 6-2, 225-pound senior middle linebacker recovered from knee injury to intercept two passes and contribute 17 game-leading tackles as top-rated Class D club stretched unbeaten string to 24 games with 28-8 victory over Nemaha Valley.

Rick Hoffman, Polk — A converted all-conference end, the 145-pound running back substitute responded with 181 yards rushing and scored all three of team's touchdowns, including a 68-yarder, in 21-7 victory over Fairmont.

John Spomer, Lincoln East — Senior split end caught three touchdown passes, covering eight, 17 and 48 yards — all in the second quarter — as unbeaten Spartans blitzed Fremont, 43-14.

Dave Burke, Papillion — Senior 6-1, 190-pound I-back maintained his season 100-yard per game rushing pace despite Monarchs' 14-13 loss to Millard.

Garry Poppe, Crofton — His 12-yard touchdown with 2:15 remaining tied the game and his 31-yard touchdown catch with only 12 seconds left handed Creighton its first loss of the season, 12-6.

Doug Heineman, Pawnee City — Indians' quarterback ran nine yards for one touchdown, ran an interception back 55 yards for another touchdown, passed for two more TD's, ran a conversion and made five tackles from his safety spot in 34-6 win over Humboldt.

Ken Wollen, Weeping Water — Senior halfback rushed for 239 yards on 26 carries, scored touchdowns on runs of four and 70 yards and ran for an extra point in 34-0 win over Bennington.

Brian Konecky, Mead — At quarterback, he hit 21 of 38 passes for 240 yards and four touchdowns and three extra points and scored a touchdown himself in team's gallant bid to upset eight-man's fifth-ranked Cedar Bluffs before losing, 50-38. The 5-11, 160-pound senior also had 10 tackles, 13 assists and intercepted a pass at safety.

John Mascarello, Omaha Gross — Scored four touchdowns on runs of four, 16, 24 and 52 yards and was the game's outstanding defensive player in second-ranked Class B club's 48-12 win over Falls City.

Damon Castrop, Kearney Catholic — Scored on 25-yard pass and a 47-yard run, rushed for game-leading 116 yards on 21 carries and had seven tackles and an interception in team's first win ever over previously unbeatedn Hildreth, 32-13.

No. 4 Spot To Humm

New York — Nebraska quarterback David Humm ranks fourth nationally in total offense this week, according to NCAA statistics released Tuesday, and he and Kansas quarterback David Jaynes are tied for fourth in passing.

Humm is averaging 226.5 yards per game in total offense. Humm and Jaynes are averaging 15.8 pass completions per game.

Rogers Withdraws From Candidate List

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Wesleyan University President Vance Rogers Tuesday withdrew his name from the list of potential candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Rogers told a Lincoln news conference that "my total commitment to my present position and responsibility is of such a nature that I cannot leave it at this time."

But, Rogers said, he is "convinced that the people of this state are anxious to respond to a new voice and a new face on the political scene.

"There is ample evidence to conclude that a candidate with vision, confidence, ability and progressive attitudes will receive the support of the dominant segment of the citizenry."

"Good Job

In answer to questioning, Rogers said he believes Democratic Gov. J. James Exon "has done a good job of utilizing the resources available to him when he took office."

But, he said, he believes Nebraskans are "now in a mood to respond" to an administration which would be "a little more adventuresome, a little more bold."

Nebraskans are ready to "stand taller" and move forward with "greater pride," he said.

Rogers said he doesn't see "dramatic evidence of progress" under the Exon administration.

Higher Education

One area in which it is needed, he said, is in higher education, and specifically at the University of Nebraska.

Although he is the president of a private university, Rogers noted, "I am a believer in the University of Nebraska" and am convinced the state is "now looking for a dramatic advance" at the institution.

NU could within 10 years develop "nationally significant" programs, he said.

Rogers pointed specifically to the Medical Center and the College of Business Administration which, he said, could be developed into "one of the 10 best in the country" in their respective fields.

It may take both public and private funds to do it, he said, but with citizen support, it can be accomplished.

Positive Response

Rogers said he was "overwhelmed" by the positive response to his possible candidacy after published speculation first emerged.

It indicated "a yearning for something new and exciting in Nebraska," he said.

And, it was only "after much deliberation" that he decided not to become a candidate. That was "the most difficult decision of its kind in my experience thus far," he said.

But, Rogers noted, he is "keeping very much alive the prospect of public service" in the future, eyeing public office as "the next career in my life."

Rogers has been NWU president for 17 years.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

For a time in the United States, there were more persons born under Aquarius than any other zodiacal sign. After that, there was a reversal and fewer Aquarians were born when compared to births under the other signs. Now, according to figures by the Census Bureau, the leading sign where births are concerned is Leo. More persons in the United States are born from July 23 to Aug. 22 than at any other time of the year.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Face responsibilities. One who seems evasive will succumb if you apply pressure in mature, legal manner. You have more on your side than might be apparent. Sagittarius, Gemini individuals could figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message for helpful hint. Strive for facts, not wishful thinking. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons are likely to be in picture. Relatives may appear heavy handed. Do what you have to do, one step at a time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some ideas can be transformed into money-making procedures. Young person may be rebellious. Key is to be analytical. Don't rush, force or jump to conclusions. What appears to be out of hand is merely a temporary situation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Home atmosphere commands attention. Family member should be approached in diplomatic manner. Obtain hint from Gemini message. You have more responsibility but you can handle it. Older person acts in surprising manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you take situations, individuals for granted, you could be in for rude awakening. Do your own checking. Applies especially where legal affairs are concerned. One behind the scenes is sitting on the fence. You have some persuading to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Momentum is on your side. Means follow through — don't be delayed by doubts, fears, suspicions. Capricorn, Cancer persons play roles. Accent is on ways to fulfill special desires. Position is strong. Money picture will change — in your favor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One who pulls strings may be wary of you. You tend now to project argumentative or revolutionary image. Be moderate in explaining views. You soon will be rid of burden. Know it and avoid panic. Aries could play significant role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Special study brings benefits. Bring creative abilities into play. Highlight originality. Stimulate learning process. Broaden horizons. Check messages. Long-distance communications may be garbled. Know it and carefully examine meanings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are able to discover best ways of enhancing security, emotional and otherwise. Accent is on clarification of puzzle. One close to you can provide light as well as heat. Be receptive. Share knowledge — and feelings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If discreet, you gain. Otherwise, you could become entangled in situation which is costly, embarrassing. Permit others, including partner, mate, to fully express themselves. You can listen and learn. Study Sagittarius message.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Maintain steady pace. Avoid sensationalism. One who works with you expresses uncertainty. Strive to respond to mature, humane manner. Overbeating attitude will create unnecessary friction. Remember diet, health resolutions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What seemed certain may be blocked by red tape, legal and otherwise. Be receptive. If aware of subtle nuances, you find that adversity fades. Gemini, Virgo individuals could figure prominently. Question of change should be answered affirmatively.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural organizer. You can handle responsibility and intelligently delegate duties. You attract many born under Cancer and Capricorn. You will travel in December and also you will be happier. You are strong in your convictions. You have many who admire you and who are envious at the same time. You are interesting and stubborn, not easy to understand but fascinating.

Market Erases Losses

New York (AP) — The stock market managed to resist a surge of profit-taking that hit it in early trading Tuesday and closed on a faint upnote.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had dropped about 11 points before noon, recovered and finished up .37 points at 967.41.

The composite index of the New York Stock Exchange added .01 to finish at 59.53, although declines held a 2-to-1 lead over advances in fairly active trading on the Big Board. Volume totaled 18.78 million shares.

Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. noted that the Dow had risen about 100 points since September with only three big down days.

Wachtel added the market had recovered after each of the down days and that Tuesday's holding action, which came on the heels of an 11-point loss in the Dow Monday, was a "normal breather." analysts said that the early selling was intensified in part by the widening Mideast war and indications of a continued tight-money policy by the Federal Reserve Board.

United Telecommunications topped the active issues on the Big Board after a 234,900-share block traded at 19 off ½. It closed at 19⅛. Institutional trading also figured in the movement of AT&T down ⅛ to 49⅜ and General Foods, up ⅛ to 27⅜, and Analysts said a strong showing by steels, reflecting renewed investor interest in cyclical stocks, fueled the market's rebound. Bethelehem Steel added ⅛ to 35⅛, Jones & Laughlin rose 2 to 21, Republic Steel climbed 1⅛ to 23⅛ and U.S. Steel advanced 1 to 36¾.

Polaroid shot up 6⅛ to 119⅞ after reporting higher third quarter net. A good third quarter also boosted Xerox 1⅞ to 144½.

Oils, which have been under heavy pressure because of speculation the Arab states may cut off supplies in retaliation for the U.S. stance in the Mideast, recovered a bit. Analysts said this was due in part to the feeling that the Arabs would not take an action so drastic that it would dry up their oil revenues.

Gulf rose ⅜ to 22⅞. Texaco added ⅜ to 31⅛. Standard of California rose ⅞ to 66⅛, and Exxon, which had slipped 1½ points during the day, closed down only ½ at 91½.

On the American Stock Exchange, losers outnumbered gainers by 5 to 3 and the market value index dropped .78 points to 108.53. The NASDAQ composite index of Over-the-Counter trading rose .01 points to 113.14 however.

Surface-To-Air Missiles Blunt Classic Tank Offensives

©The New York Times

By DREW MIDDLETON

New York — The Middle East war is unlikely to produce new Pattons or Rommels because surface-to-air missiles have blunted the thrust of the tank-fighter-bomber team that since 1940 has dominated offensive tactics.

U.S. and other military authorities concede that the collapse of either side would open the door to hell-for-leather armored thursts that characterized Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's campaigns in North Africa and Gen. George C. Patton's drive out of the Normandy bridgehead across France in World War II.

But the surface-to-air missile's capability to neutralize the fighter-bomber has slowed the offensive and led to something close to a stalemate in the critical Sinai battle.

The Israelis acknowledged the importance of these missiles when they sent a task force, presumably commandos, possibly airborne, west of the Suez Canal to attack Egyptian missile sites protecting the bridgehead and its lines of communications.

Largest Action

From reports reaching Washington and London, the Egyptian effort to break out of the bridgehead Sunday was the largest single action of the war involving approximately 400 tanks and 60,000 infantry.

The attack failed to reach its basic objectives largely because Israeli tanks, artillery and anti-tank missiles were deployed on high ground to smash the offensive. But, sources pointed out, it is symptomatic of the present war that having hurt the enemy — Tel Aviv claims the destruction of 220 Egyptian tanks — the Israelis were not in a position to follow up with successful armored attacks.

The tank-fighter-bomber partnership defends for success on the aircraft's ability to neutralize anti-tank guns and strong points in the armor's path. The team's effectiveness in the current fighting has been reduced, primarily on the Israeli side, by the SAM missiles, particularly the mobile SAM 6, that has knocked out Israeli fighter-bombers.

The possibility of a stalemate on both the Sinai and Syrian fronts has emphasized the importance of material replenishment by the Soviet Union to the Arabs and by the U.S. to the Israelis.

Arab Advantage

Thus far the advantage is with the Arabs. Gen. George S. Brown, the Air Force chief of staff, said in Chicago that the Russians had moved in more than 5,000 tons of supplies in about 300 aircraft while the United States has sent "less than half" that total in "consumables" for the Israeli air force, such as ammunition and wing tanks.

Brown cited as evidence of the increasing international character of the cirsis that the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean has now reached 60 ships, the strongest combat force ever deployed in that area by the Soviet Union.

According to Western sources the Egyptians and Syrians have taken advantage of their superiority in surface-to-air missiles to preserve their planes. Fighter-bombers are employed only on specific ground-support missions and, apparently, are under orders to avoid dogfights in which the superior training of pilots would give the Israelis an edge. Because, at present, the Israelis are less well provided with surface-to-air missiles, the Arab aircraft, particularly the Sukhoi 7's, have had considerable success in ground attacks.

Outpost Shows Russian Presence

Jurin, Syria (UPI) — A portrait of V. I. Lenin on the wall, a recent clipping from a Soviet newspaper and hand-written notes in Cyrillic script were among the tell-tale signs left behind in a small Syrian army base near here which indicated a recent Russian presence in the battle zone.

The compact base, located about nine miles inside Syria from the 1967 cease-fire line, clearly had been abandoned in extreme haste.

The base consisted of a small cluster of concrete and corrugated-iron buildings barely 100 yards off the Damascus road and defended by anti-aircraft guns. The headquarters did not seem big enough to house a fighting unit of any appreciable size.

It had no parade ground, no transport park, no sleeping billets. It was composed mainly of offices with camp beds or small adjoining bedrooms of the type used by staff or intelligence officers.

The drawers of steel filing cabinets were pulled open and all papers removed. Keys still dangled in the locks. Uniforms, gas masks, boots and shaving materials spilled out of gaping closets.

On a plastic-leather armchair were three documents in Russian script. They were:

—A log book ar diary in Cyrillic script. Dates were entered neatly in Roman numerals starting with Oct. 5, 1972, and running into 1973. Entries varied from a couple of lines to about a dozen, all in handsome inked handwriting.

—A page torn from a Russian newspaper, crisp and recent.

—A foolscap sheet of penciled notes, unsmudged and apparently lately written.

On the walls were portraits of Lenin and posters extolling the "peace-seeking" Russian army as well as other Communist posters.

The furniture — glass-topped desk, padded armchairs, Formica-top tables — was gimcrack but luxurious by Syrian army standards. Black and white striped curtains blew from the smashed windows.

The buildings bore evidence of small arms fire, but there was no sign of tank or artillery damage, suggesting the camp was empty when the Israelis arrived.

Troops immediately posted black and pink notices on the doors banning entry because the buildings might contain "secret documents of value to intelligence."

State Department: U.S. Men Won't Go To Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Tuesday the United States does not intend to send American combat forces to the Middle East.

But, it was learned, the ongoing U.S. shipment of jet airplanes, tanks and other weapons to Israel may eventually equal the massive Soviet shipments to Egypt and Syria or even exceed them.

"We will be guided by what Israel's military needs are," said Robert J. McCloskey, the State Department spokesman, in regard to Washington's resupply plans.

Officials said Moscow has ferried some 5,000 tons of equipment to Egypt and Syria in 300 flights during one week. The U.S. airlift amounted in its first two days, to about one-tenth that amount.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was reported to have said Monday night at a White House dinner that "we have no intention of sending troops to the Middle East, but if the Russians send troops it will be a different matter."

McCloskey, without questioning the accuracy of the statement, said Kissinger spoke "quite informally to someone at a purely social occasion." U.S. officials then affirmed that Washington has no plan to send American forces into the war.

McCloskey said he did not know if technicians would accompany the equipment being supplied to Israel. He said he had no information as to whether Soviet technicians had accompanied the Soviet supplies to the Arabs.

In another development, Melvin R. Laird, Nixon's domestic adviser, was reported to have told a group of newsmen at a breakfast that "the actions of the Soviet Union have been disruptive, as far as the opportunities to achieve a cease-fire and an immediate settlement," are concerned.

He said the Sixth Fleet was being reinforced and that the Soviet Union has already taken a similar step with its ships in the Mediterranean.

"We have not had meaningful negotiations on the Middle East," said the former defense secretary. "... The Soviet Union, as far as I'm concerned, has not been performing as if detente is here."

$675 Million To Israel Americans Contribute

New York (UPI) — Sympathizers around the country have contributed an estimated $675 million to Israel since the Mideast war began 11 days ago.

While precise figures are not available, estimates from more than a dozen major cities indicate that $650 million worth of Israel bonds have been purchased. The rest of the funds is in cash.

"We don't even have a chance to count the checks and money," said Rebecca S. Barth, chairman of the bond drive in Louisville, Ky. "We haven't added today's to the total figure." The United Jewish Appeal in Louisville reported collecting $600,000 "and more" since the fighting began. In Los Angeles the UJA figure was nearly $6 million.

Sam Rothberg, general chairman of the Israel bond organization in Chicago, reported sales of $150 million during the first week of the war, of which more than $1 million was in cash.

In the South, the Jewish Welfare Federation in New Orleans said it was "days behind in counting, but the figure as of three or four days ago was $11.4 million. Collections have dramatically increased each day."

Approximately $8 million worth of bonds have been sold in Florida, with the Israel Emergency Fund of the UJA there collecting about $4 million.

The UJA offices in New York and Washington said the flood of contributions made it impossible to estimate how much had been received. But a spokesman for Israel bonds in New York said $150 million worth had been sold.

Not all of the contributions have been from Jews.

"The bonds are being purchased by all walks of life . . . We're getting it from Jew and non-Jew alike," said Al Keller of the Missouri Israel bonds office.

Students Burn Effigy Of Nixon

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysai (UPI) — About 5,000 Moslem students protesting American aid to Israel burned effigies of President Nixon and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan Tuesday, tore down an American flag and stoned an American-built cultural center to press their demands for the immediate closure of the U.S. Embassy.

Church Council Urges U.S. To Help End War

©The New York Times

New York — The National Council of Churches, a federation of 30 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, called upon the U.S. government to "use the full weight of its influence" to bring the Middle East war to an end "at the earliest possible moment" and urged the United States and the Soviet Union to halt immediately arms shipments to the belligerents.

But the council's statement, adopted at the close of the four-day meeting of its governing board here, drew sharp criticism from two executives of the American Jewish Committee because it failed to support the Israeli cause.

The executives, Rabbi A. James Rudin, assistant director of the committee's interreligious affairs department, and Gerald Strober, Presbyterian consultant for the department, hastily called a news conference in the council press room.

With council officials sitting in but not participating, the two men assailed the church group for what they described as its failure to deal with the "realities" of the Middle East war and its "total inability to morally condemn" Egypt and Syria.

Rabbi Rudin described the national council as a "forum for militant, pro-Arab opinion."

Both Rabbi Rudin and Strober were at the council meeting as observers, a status they have enjoyed for many years.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 10-17
